HO, HO, HO — Three-year-old Jason, son of Independent-Journal photographer Alfred M. Arn, gets a kick out of Santa and really doesn't care if some want to think of childhood's hero as a man and others as a woman. After all, Jason says, like truth, or beauty or courage, Santa is as Santa does.

Ehrlichman's Lawyer Says Trial Unfair

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Blocked by the court from calling a series of defense witnesses, John D. Ehrlichman's lawyer charged today that his client "is not getting a fair trial" in the Watergate cover-up case.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, opening the trial's 11th week, shrugged off the complaint and ordered Ehrlichman attorney William S. Frates to move along with his case.

Ehrlichman, once Richard M. Nixon's No. 2 aide, is now one of five former Nixon lieutenants on trial for conspiracy in the cover-up plot.

Sirica's ruling forced Frates to shift his defense strategy and put his client on the stand at least a day sooner than he had planned to. He aslo scrapped earlier plans to call Ehrlichman's wife, Jeanne, as a witness.

"I say that Mr. Ehrlichman is not getting a fair trial if this is the situation...," Frates said angrily after Sirica had forbidden a third witness from testifying. "I say that to exclude as many witnesses as your honor has excluded is a far cry from Mr. Ehrlichman getting a fair trial."

"That's a pretty nice speech you're making," Sirica replied mildly. "But it isn't going to affect me."

Frates —who last week lost a fourth prospective witness when Sirica ruled that former President Richard M. Nixon did not have to testify —nodded his head curtly and sat down. He did not move for a mistrial.

Sirica on Friday refused to permit Richard Glanzer, one of the original Watergate prosecutors, to testify as an Ehrlichman witness. Today he similarly refused to let the jury hear William Treadwell, once a lawyer for former White House aide Egil Krogh or Earl J. Silbert, who ran the first Watergate investigation.

He did let the jury hear a few preliminary questions to Silbert, but ordered jurors out the courtroom when the questioning turned to substantive issues.

In each case, Sirica upheld government objections that Frates had failed to follow proper procedures to lay the legal foundation through earlier witnesses for interrogating Glanzer. Treadwell and Silbert.

Frates did, however, elicit testimony from former White House aide Walter C. Minnick that appeared to contradict in parts an account by John W. Dean III of a brief business trip he and Dean made to Camp David, Md., two years ago.

Frates, again with the jury out of the courtroom argued that Dean's credibility is the "$64 question in the entire case."

Rohnert Park Wins A Round In Shopping Center Struggle

Santa Rosa's Request For Injunction Denied

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A major obstacle to Rohnert Park's projected regional shopping center was swept away today as a Sonoma Superior Court judge ruled against Santa Rosa in its suit against the Southern Sonoma City.

Judge Joseph P. Murphy Jr. denied Santa Rosa's request for a permanent injunction preventing construction of a large commercial complex on some 275 acres on either side of Highway 101 at the Rohnert Park expressway interchange north of the city.

He also dissolved a temporary restraining order which Santa Rosa had obtained earlier to stop Rohnert Park's planning of the center while court proceedings went on.

Santa Rosa, which presently is the site of the huge Coddingtown regional center and which plans to build a second one downtown as part of its urban renewal program, has charged that the environmental impact report on the Rohnert Park project was inadequate in that it does not take into account what Santa Rosa attorneys called the "cumulative impact" of the development on the region's sewer and flooding problems and freeway traffic congestion.

Rohnert Park city attorney John Flitner countered by arguing that the chief reason for Santa Rosa's opposition was the fear of economic competition with business in the county seat, which lies about five miles north.

Tentative plans for the Rohnert Park center call for a mixture of stores, offices, service-oriented businesses and multiple housing units.

Still unresolved is a countersuit, filed by Rohnert Park in U.S. District Court against Santa Rosa, charging that its urban renewal plan constitutes a violation of federal antitrust regulations.

Rohnert Park contends in the action that the Santa Rosa project, financed by more than $22 million in federal redevelopment loans and grants, "represents an attempt to monopolize retail and general merchandise sales in Sonoma County and the Santa Rosa trade area."

Santa Rosa officials say they need their proposed 40-acre downtown regional center because the area was badly damaged by earthquakes in 1969.

REDEVELOPMENT PLANS

Agency To Consider Four Issues

By NELS JOHNSON
(Last of three articles)

A proposal to construct a major new shopping complex in downtown San Rafael has the support of the city chamber of commerce and the citizens advisory committee on redevelopment.

Recommendations by the chamber and the citizens committee that redevelopment focus on a retail shopping complex of two or three major department stores near downtown Fourth Street are the core of proposals made by the two organizations in connection with city redevelopment plans.

The San Rafael City Council, meeting as the city redevelopment agency, will consider the recommendations at 7:30 p.m. today in city hall. The council will also review a series of recommendations made by the San Rafael Canal citizens advisory committee.

At issue are four redevelopment sketch plans proposed by city consultants. The choices facing city leaders range from erection of a massive shopping center in East San Rafael to a more modest facelifting of the city's business district.

The chamber and the redevelopment citizens committee have essentially endorsed various combinations of sketch plans two and three — with provision for a shopping complex of two or three department stores near the foot of Fourth Street.

Both groups appear to support a proposal in Sketch Plan Two for up to 2,000 residential units backing a linear bayfront park along the city's waterfront. Both groups also support construction of up to 700,000 square feet of offices along West Francisco Boulevard as proposed in Sketch Plan Three, although the chamber suggests the offices might be mixed with commercial construction.

Proposals by both groups for a shopping center along downtown Fourth Street seem similar to the complex proposed in Sketch Plan Three.

The chamber of commerce, saying that the goal of redevelopment should be to improve the economy of the local business community and boost profits of merchants, recommends the plan focus on a Fourth Street complex of three major department stores encompassing 500,000 square feet.

The chamber suggests that Macy's be the major tenant in such a center, and says the downtown firm requires a three-story, 150,000-square-foot facility with parking for about 800 cars.

Other chamber recomendations include creation of a "traffic mall" on Fourth Street that allows access for both pedestrians and autos, elimination of parking meters downtown and a study of new thoroughfares to ease downtown traffic congestion.

The chamber also recommends a study of linking Terra Linda and downtown via subway, and a study of railway transit.

The chamber recommends more study be made of proposals by consultants to centralize local auto dealerships along Francisco Boulevard.

The citizens advisory committee on redevelopment has expressed support for centralization of auto dealerships on East Francisco Boulevard, a hotel at the head of the San Rafael canal, and a marina at the mouth of the canal.

The committee, in a memo councilmen will review tonight, notes that its recommendation for a "moderate-sized" shopping center downtown was opposed by committee members Jerry R. Russom and Richard M. Kamieniecki.

"Is it truly necessary to create a shopping center — even a subregional one — downtown?" Russom asks in a minority committee report. "Is it in San Rafael's best interests to try to be the retail hub of Marin County?"

Both Russom and Kamieniecki note that the city is limited to issuing $6 million in redevelopment bonds due to previous agreements with the county, and note that consultants have said a downtown shopping center alone will cost more than $7 million.

The San Rafael Canal citizens advisory committee, like the chamber and redevelopment

CAUGHT UP IN SPIRIT

Female Santa's So Happy She Feels Like Real Thing

By BONNIE BARD

The Christmas spirit has so grasped a Petaluma woman that she believes she's truly Santa Claus.

In a plush red velvet chair at Mervyn's department store, scores of children have climed onto her lap to share their Christmas dreams. Most are unaware the jolly person is a woman and are swept up by the charisma of Santa Claus.

Deidre Von Tungeln, as one of the first female Santas to be hired by a department store, is having the time of her life.

"I don't feel like a lady Santa," said the 24-year-old mother. "I really feel like Santa. When a small child sits on your lap and truly believes that you are Santa, you can't help but believe you really are."

Mrs. Von Tungeln, who doesn't believe in women's liberation and devotes herself to making a home for her husband and two children, got the part-time Santa job simply by answering a classified advertisement.

"My husband, Clark, didn't think I had a chance," she said. "I didn't think so either when I went to apply and the girl in the office said they had never had a lady Santa before. It's silly, really, Santa isn't a man or a woman. Santa is a spirit."

Store officers say Mrs. Von Tungeln was hired because of her personality and not because she was a woman.

"She was a real stand-out among the applicants," according to Keith Kruckenberg, assistant manager at Mervyn's. "She's doing a marvelous job. The kids are having great fun with her."

Mrs. Von Tungeln said most youngsters never realize that they're confiding in a female Santa.

"They're so sincere and so wrapped up in the presents they're asking for that they really don't notice," she said.

Older children, however, can cause problems. A mother reported her 3-year-old son really enjoyed his visit with Santa, then climbed down only to be confronted by a closely observing and sophisticated 9-year-old boy who made it clear he wouldn't be caught dead in Santa's lap, male or female. "That's not a man, that's a woman," he sneered.

The 3-year-old, undaunted, faced the older boy with his hands on his hips and told him defiantly, "That's neither ... that's Santa Claus."

Mrs. Von Tungeln lowers her voice a bit so she won't give herself away. "The voice really isn't much of a problem," she said. "I sing alto or tenor in choirs anyway."

"I really don't wear much padding under the outfit. If Santa were too big the kids get scared," she said. A pair of her husband's shoes complete the outfit.

"The costume is really comfortable to wear," Mrs. Von Tungeln said. "The only problem is the beard. It makes my face break out."

"The kids are really terrific," she said. "The 2-year-olds tend to be afraid of Santa, but the

Mill Valley Man Is Charged In Theft Of Ellsberg Papers

By GEORGE NEVIN

The man authorities say took four briefcases of documents from Daniel Ellsberg's Mill Valley home and tried to extort money from the Pentagon Papers figure was charged with burglary today.

"We believe we have a good case" against Kevin Patrick Quinn, 21, of Mill Valley, said deputy district attorney Ernest V. Zunino.

Quinn was due to be arraigned today in Marin Municipal Court, where he already faces charges of burglarizing another house, concealing stolen property and bombing a Mill Valley police car.

When arrested, Quinn was wearing Ellsberg's size 11½ after ski boots, and his handwriting matches a printed extortion note left in Ellsberg's home after the Oct. 1 burglary, the Independent-Journal learned.

At a Friday press conference, Ellsberg complained that while the Defense Department may not have been behind the burglary it still wants the purloined documents though not entitled to them.

Among them are his own notes in connection with the Pentagon Papers case, Ellsberg said, and four cablegrams the government still considers classified. These deal with instructions to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, then commander of the U. S. Army in Vietnam, about how to handle questions at a press conference in 1968.

Ellsberg said he has examined only about 10 per cent of the recovered documents, which remain at the Mill Valley police station, and his own files are in such disorder he doesn't know exactly what was stolen.

Benjamin Dreyfus, Ellsberg's attorney, said today he hopes to meet tomorrow with James L. Browning Jr., the U. S. Attorney for San Francisco, to try to settle the question of who will eventually get the documents, Ellsberg or the government.

Dreyfus said it is "always possible" the government could charge Ellsberg with stealing the official documents.

"The government has a history of persecuting and prosecuting this man," he said, but added he has no reason to believe any charge will be forthcoming.

Dreyfus said Ellsberg has made photocopies of some of the documents but has yet to examine all of them.

He said Browning has promised to call him if he goes to court to try to obtain the documents. This would give him time to go to federal court to get the subpoena quashed.

(In a photo caption in Friday's I-J, the Independent-Journal incorrectly identified the Federal Bureau of Investigation agent who accompanied Frank A. Bartimo of the Defense Department to a meeting with Dreyfus.

(Neil M. Sullivan, senior resident agent in San Rafael, said it is "not the FBI's policy to give out the name of individual agents" and declined to furnish the correct name.)

Plans Council Might Vote On Own Demise

The City-County Planning Council of Marin will vote Wednesday on its own demise — if a quorum can be found, that is.

The council, made up of representatives from Marin's 11 cities and the county, was formed seven years ago to oversee preparation of the county general plan.

Since the plan's adoption by supervisors last year, the council meetings have been plagued with absenteeism, despite efforts to give the group some role in carrying out the plan.

Its disbandment was recommended Friday by chairman Jack G. Nixon, a San Rafael city councilman, and vice chairman Gary T. Giacomini, a county supervisor.

Werner Von Gundell, the county's acting planning director who serves as the chief staff aide to the group, also recommended dissolving the body.

The council — made up of a councilman and planning commissioners from each city and a supervisor and planning commissioner from the county — currently is charged with informally reviewing major development proposals of "countywide interest" and monitoring how well the plan is being carried out.

"We feel the review committee function can be carried on by the new committee that is about to be organized to work on the programs and priorities for the Federal Housing and Community Development Act of 1974," Nixon wrote.

"In addition, the residential development review boards (growth control boards) for each planning area will continue to involve elected and appointed representatives on interjurisdictional planning matters."

The council meeting is slated for 8 p.m. in the planning commission chambers at Civic Center.

Council To Fill Planner Vacancy

The Fairfax Town Council will fill a vacancy on the town planning commission when it meets at 8 p.m. today in the Fairfax Women's Club.

Eight candidates have applied for the post vacated by the death of John Grybel. They are: David A. Pines, Arlin Timberlake, William Chapman, Tucker Spolter, John Sergeant, Leander Duhring, Walter Connally and Lindy T. Patrick.

In addition, councilmen are expected to reappoint commissioner Lee Eckles to another term on the agency. His term expires next month.

The town council will also consider a proposal to replace the town board of review with a hearing officer.

One Of Two Men Killed In Suspected Kidnapings

Marin sheriff's deputies today shot and killed one of two men suspected of kidnaping two Marin City women and demanding money for their release.

Michael Matthews, age and address unknown, died in the 12:19 a.m. shooting outside the home of Roy Morgan Sr. at 19 Park Circle in Marin City.

The second man, James Roosevelt Wallace, 40, of San Francisco, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of kidnaping, armed robbery and burglary. He was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Sheriff's Sgt. Kenneth Froberg and deputy Joseph Curley fired on Matthews when he turned on them while trying to escape from the house, Lt. Robert Gaddini reported.

Gaddini said two shots were fired by the officers. Matthews was armed with a pistol but it was not known if he shot at the

Prime Figure Down

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wells Fargo Bank lowered its prime rate today to 10¼ per cent from 10½ per cent, effective immediately. Ward C. Krebs, senior vice president, said the reduction was in line with a downward trend of other money markets and a decreasing demand for loans.

Punch, Cookies With Later Hour

The San Rafael City Library, which for years has closed on noon Dec. 24 in observance of the Christmas holiday, will be open through 5 p.m. this Christmas Eve.

Librarian Vivian R. Smith said City Mgr. William J. Bielser asked library staff to keep the facility open to 5 p.m. this year, since all other city departments will remain open to 5 p.m.

The librarian said that punch and cookies will be served to patrons on the occasion.

East Germany Opens Embassy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — East Germany today opened its first embassy in the United States.

Counselor Joachim Elm will be charge d'affaires until Ambassador-designate Rolf Sieber presents his credentials to Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Ingersoll on Wednesday.

Under the diplomatic exchange worked out earlier this year, the United States will be opening an embassy in East Berlin.

GOING HOME — The Democratic Party ended a national mini-convention yesterday in Kansas City, Mo., confident that the newly unified organization is on the road back to the White House for 1976. # Demos See Way To White House

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Democrats left Kansas City today with a new party charter, some old-fashioned party unity and burgeoning confidence that they are on the road back to the White House in 1976.

The party ended its unprecedented national mini-convention yesterday with national chairman Robert Strauss' triumphant declaration — "We have brought the Democratic party back to life . . . the Democratic party is ready to govern America again."

The three-day meeting produced the first formal constitution adopted by a major U.S. political party.

In the course of writing it, the party's principal factions also rediscovered they could deal with each other without leaving the scars that since 1968 have doomed efforts to regain national leadership.

But the convention did not bring to the fore the party's most significant need — a clear front-runner for the 1976 presidential nomination.

A pack of hopefuls wooed the 2,500 delegates and alternates in the cavernous Kansas City auditorium and the convention hotels, but no one of them made an impact strong enough to establish a favorite in the nomination sweepstakes.

Only one announced candidate, Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., was on hand. But two others soon to declare — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia — competed for delegate attention with him and with Sens. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Robert Byrd of West Virginia, and Alabama Gov. George Wallace. The charter largely is a collection of existing rules and traditions, but it also embeds into party law some of the New Politics reforms that have spawned the bitterest kind of intramural feuding since the 1960s.

While abandoning the quota system that caused such trouble in 1972, the party committed itself to give blacks, women, young people and other minorities a full voice in Democratic decision-making.

It also buried some of the favorite tools of political power brokers: the unit rule and winner-take-all caucuses and primaries.

It was a struggle over some of these reforms that gave life to the mini-convention.

Blacks and women united Saturday to demand that party leaders and elected officials ease proposed charter rules on national convention delegate challenges.

Brandishing the threat of a mass walkout that would have destroyed the image of unity Strauss wanted so passionately to project, the black delegates forced the regulars into an old-fashioned backroom deal that gave reformers more than they had expected to win from the closely-divided convention.

The reformers sustained some setbacks, including rejection of their proposal to make mid-term conferences a permanent fixture.

Labor, once a unified and nearly unbeatable power in Democratic affairs, was divided between the reform and regular elements here. The losers were unions allied with AFL-CIO President George Meany.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Hopes Slight For Cyprus Pact

NICOSIA (UPI) — The leader of the Turkish Cypriot minority on Cyprus says the return of Archbishop Makarios has left "very slight hope" for a settlement with the divided island's Greek Cypriot majority.

Denktash

Rauf Denktash told a news conference yesterday the Turkish Cypriots are pessimistic about future negotiations, but are still looking for "some sign of hope" from Makarios.

Makarios, who returned from exile Saturday and resumed the presidency, said he would oppose partition of the island between ethnic Greeks and Turks.

Denktash, vice president in the island's elected government, said Cyprus is heading for partition unless the two sides can come to terms.

"You cannot give self-government to the communities without a geographical basis," he said. "If that's the common line, then we are at an impasse."

Fierce Fighting

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces opened up a new front in their "rice war" today, leaving more than 6,000 dead and wounded on both sides in three days of fighting.

The Saigon command said the Communists appeared to have turned their attention to Tay Ninh, a stategic provincial capital northwest of Saigon, after three days of fierce fighting in the rice-rich Meking Delta.

Official figures released today by the command said more than 6,000 soldiers on both sides had been killed or wounded in three days of heavy fighting throughout the nation.

Fighting ending at sunrise today was the heaviest since the 1971 ceasefire, the command said.

Miki Takes Over

TOKYO (UPI) — Takeo Miki, a veteran legislator with a reputation for honesty, took over as prime minister today, replacing a scandal-marred predecessor he helped drive from office.

The lower house of the Diet (parliament) overwhelmingly elected Miki prime minister within hours of outgoing leader Kakuei Tanaka's formal resignation.

Miki, a member of the lower house for 37 years, became the 66th prime minister since Japan adopted the parliamentary system of government in 1885.

Vesco Protected

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Costa Rica's President Daniel Oduber, warning his country's independence was at stake, has rejected demands to extradite fugitive American financier Robert Vesco.

The Costa Rican Supreme Court has ruled that there were no legal grounds for expulsion of Vesco, who has been charged in the United States with illegally contributing $250,000 to former President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

Some 200 Costa Rican citizens, including Oduber's own first vice president, have signed a petition asking Vesco's expulsion.

Oduber said there would be no government action against Vesco unless he was proven guilty of a crime in Costa Rican courts.

NATO Spending

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said today he hopes European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will maintain current defense spending in spite of inflationary pressures to cut costs.

The NATO military committee, composed of the chiefs of staff of the NATO nations, met today to discuss a report on Warsaw pact military developments over the last six months.

The Warsaw pact is the Soviet bloc's counterpart of the Western alliance.

Archbishop Guilty

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A three-judge court found Greek Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capucci guilty today of smuggling arms to Arab guerrillas in Israel and sentenced him to 12 years in prison.

The 52-year-old Capucci could have received up to 35 years in prison on charges of smuggling weapons and explosives to guerrillas in Israel and meeting guerrilla agents in Beirut.

Stormy Weather

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Up to 14 inches of wind-driven snow glutted the mountains of Texas and New Mexico yesterday. Winds gusted to more than 50 miles per hour in the mountain passes.

Five inches of snow fell at Guadalupe Pass in southwest Texas and up to 14 inches blocked the passes at higher elevations in New Mexico.

Gale warnings stayed in effect for the Great Lakes and along the southern New England coast through the night. Snow fell through the night in Michigan and much of the Ohio Valley, mixing with rain in the central Appalachians.

Fog enveloped northern California and a Pacific Northwest cold front brought light rain to the area.

New Food Plea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of an international relief agency today called on restaurants to serve smaller portions of food as a means of feeding the world's starving people.

"Food portions served in most restaurants far exceed the quantity we need," said Dr. W. Stanley Mooneyham of World Vision International. "The amount of uneaten food we send back to restaurant kitchens could feed millions of hungry people."

Mooneyham suggested that restaurant operators could give their patrons the choice between a regular portion and a so-called children's portion.

TODAY'S WORLD

"The price is ridiculously low — when you consider what 3,875 pounds of porterhouse steak would cost you!"

Membership Reform Is GOP Goal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican party reformers yesterday approved a plan to encourage — but not require — state organizations to seek more party membership among minorities, women, youths and old people.

The GOP plan was adopted yesterday by the "Rule 29 Committee," set up by the party's 1972 convention to reform party rules.

It still needs approval by the national GOP committee, the convention rules committee and the 1976 national convention itself before it takes effect.

The Republican national committee will have no direct power to require recruitment drives. But those states that comply will be almost assured of surviving challenges to the credentials of their national covention delegates.

In order to win unanimous approval of the Rule 29 Committee, sponsors of "positive action" to recruit minorities make it clear that states refusing to go along with the drive would not lose their convention seats on that basis alone.

The key compromise provision was that failure to produce greater minority participation will not, by itself, be a ground for disqualifying a state's convention delegation.

Rep. William A. Steiger, Wis., chairman of the reform panel, said that if a state does not want to go along with the "spirit of the proposal," the only pressure that can be applied is through a credetial challenge.

South Korea Would Quiet Missionary

SEOUL (UPI) — An American missionary said today he had been asked to promise in writing that he will not engage in activities opposing the present government of South Korea.

George Ogle, 45, a Methodist missionary from Pittsburgh who has lived in South Korea for 20 years, denied, however, that Korean authorities had threatened to deport him unless he complied with the demand.

He said he hoped the Korean government would speak to him directly rather than through the U.S. embassy and give him a chance to present his case. The deadline passed without Ogle sending the requested promise.

In a telephone interview with UPI, Ogle said as a missionary he does not side with any political group, but at times he speaks about human rights and social justice.

Earlier, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said, "We are aware that the Republic of Korea government may be reviewing Mr. Ogles' status as a foreign resident. We have discussed the matter with the Korean government and also with Mr. Ogle."

"However," an embassy spokesman said, "during those discussions with Mr. Ogle the embassy made no recommendations regarding his future course of conduct."

Ogle makes his home in Seoul with his wife and three children, a son and two daughters.

Bank Robberies On The Increase

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

According to FBI statistics, 50 banks were robbed each week during the last fiscal year. The number could go even higher this year.

The number of bank robberies doubled in Chicago and increased 30 per cent in the San Francisco area.

By December, there were more robberies in Indiana this year than ever before —more than in the 1930s heydays of John Dillinger, Public Enemy No. 1. But most authorities agree that the day of the "pro" appears gone.

"It's not like back in the early days in the 1920s and 1930s —John Dillinger, Bonnie and Clyde," said Edward Tucker, director of security for the First National Bank of Chicago.

Dillinger escaped from the Lake County Jail at Crown Point, Ind., by threatening guards with a gun made from wood and shoe polish.

Recently, three children playing in a midwestern park captured a robber. In Indiana, three masked gunmen fled on bicycles.

But amateur robbers or not, people get killed during bank robberies. And robberies are increasing. The FBI said 33 persons were killed during crimes in banks during fiscal year 1974.

Authorities say robbers are taking hostages more frequently.

"It seems as though there are more people taking hostages to provide an ace in the hole. They can always trade that hostage for an automobile," Tucker said.

Some say the sagging economy is to blame.

"During an economic downswing, crime does rise. Money is scarce and people have to find it somewhere," a spokesman for the Bank Administration Institute said.

Others blame narcotics, availability of guns, lax security, too lenient punishment or the accessibility of bank branches.

Dan Darico, head of security for Marine Midland BankWestern, Buffalo, N.Y., blamed the trend toward armed robberies on guns being "more readily available today."

Law enforcement officals say cameras considerably improve chances that robbers will be caught.

But some smaller banks believe it costs less to have a minimum of security because the money robbers take is less than guard salaries and expensive equipment, a Chicago bank official said.

Cameras and other security devices are not always foolproof. A.W. Wells, assistant agent in charge of the Indianapolis, Ind., FBI office, complained bank employees often failed to turn on cameras or sound silent alarms.

Suburban branch banks are robbed more often because they are more accessible and attract fewer patrons, said Edward J. Krupinsky, FBI special agent in charge for Iowa and Nebraska.

"We are recommending stricter security, but we are not spelling out the methods," said Henry Ley, Nebraska banking director. "That is better left to the bankers."

Students Slate Three Programs

Students will present a play, a jazz concert and a program of Christmas music at Redwood High School this month.

Three performances of the student production, "Down in the Valley" will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday at the Little Theater.

On Sunday Gary Walker will conduct a student concert of vocal and instrumental jazz at 7:30 p.m., and a A Capella Choir and Girls' Chorus will present a free program of Christmas music at 8 p.m. Dec. 19, both at the Little Theater.

Mother Of San Jose Sextuplets 'Shocked'

SAN JOSE (UPI) — "The doctor told me I would probably have triplets," said Mrs. Charlotte Lange, 26. "When the fourth and fifth and sixth ones were born I was completely shocked."

The sixth and smallest of the sextuplets — rare even for women using fertility drugs — died within four hours of his birth yesterday. He weighed only 1 pound, 15 ounces.

The surviving three boys and two girls were reported in "fair" condition today and all of them were in respirators.

"They're not out of the woods by any means," said Carl Heintze, hospital spokesman. "The next two days are crucial."

Dr. James Harrow, director of newborn services, said, "It's going to be up and down this week" because the babies all have hyaline membrane disease, an oxygen absorption problem common among premature babies with underdeveloped lungs.

The delivery lasted 44 minutes and came three months early for Mrs. Lange, the wife of an armored car guard. She had been taking fertility drugs.

Mrs. Lange's obstetrician, Dr. Vincent Nola, said she bore quadruplets a year ago but none lived and she and her husband, Alvin, 29, had been childless.

"We knew by X-ray that we had three infants," Nola said of the births yesterday. "I thought there might be four. But after the fourth one was born it was apparent there were two more to be born."

The weight of the surviving sextuplets — 2 to 2½ pounds — was good for their 27-week term, Nola said, and they were born naturally without surgery.

Doctors said the small boy who died was in critical condition almost immediately after his birth at O'Connor Hospital.

The other five babies were taken to nearby Valley Medical Center and put in the care of a special neo-natal team.

Mrs. Lange was reported in excellent condition and her husband went home to rest after the all-night wait in the hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

Beer prices in the United States are soaring, but thirsty Americans are drinking more beer than ever, reports the National Enquirer.

VITAMIN C IS AMAZING!

Something new (to us, at least) about vitamin C benefits: A leading medical newspaper article says the vitamin seems to increase the effectiveness of drugs prescribed for various reasons. And it evidently lessens toxic side effects of medications, too!

Research shows large amounts of vitamin C may prevent suspected damage from certain chemical food additives. And Czech scientists find the vitamin increases mental alertness. It's almost impossible to keep up with new discoveries about vitamin C. But it's a simple matter to keep your own body supplied with it. We have a wide variety in stock to satisfy individual preferences.

Two Unions Dismissed As Defendants In Case

OAKLAND (UPI) — A superior court judge today dismissed two union locals as defendants from the $12 million conspiracy-damage case brought by the San Rafael Independent-Journal.

Alameda County Judge William J. Hayes granted motions to dismiss Stereotypers and Electrotypers Local No. 29 and Photoengravers Local No. 8 from the list of unions and individuals being sued by the newspaper. Dismissal was on the technical grounds that returns of service to these unions had not been entered with the court during the three-year period prescribed by law.

The dismissal still left as defendants numerous individuals and unions including International Typographical Union and its Local 21 in San Francisco, Joint Council of Teamsters No. 7 and its Local 921, and the San Francisco and Marin Labor Councils.

The judge refused a motion to dismiss from the case four individuals who had been served by publication rather than in person.

The motions were heard as first steps were taken to select a jury. It must be selected prior to Jan. 7, 1975, in order to comply with state law that a trial must begin no more than five years after a complaint is filed.

The Independent-Journal filed suit in 1970 against a group of unions and individuals in connection with a strike against the newspaper by printers.

The company asked $2.4 million in general and specific damages and $10 million in punitive damages "for the sake of example" since it claims the parties were in conspiracy "intentionally and maliciously."

The case was transferred to Alameda County and assigned to Hayes, who postponed consideration of several pretrial matters in order to get the trial started by the Jan. 7 deadline.

The trial will be held in a makeshift courtroom in the Oakland Veterans Memorial Building, since it is estimated the case will continue for three to nine months.

The Marin County newspaper has charged the unions with conspiracy to interfere with its business by unlawful means in order to bring pressure to bear to force the Independent-Journal to either cease publication or capitulate to the striking typographical union.

SANTA

other kids really love Santa. I've had up to 10-year-olds who still really believe. It makes you have more faith."

"The difficult ones are the 7 and 8-year-olds and upwards," she said. "They're getting big, but they still want to believe. They usually feel strange sitting on my lap, so I just give them a hug and hold them close."

As Santa, Mrs. Von Tungeln asks the children if they've been good boys or girls. "Most say they've been good, but I'm shocked by the number who say no. It must be terrible for a child to not think they're good.

"I also ask them if they've been brushing their teeth and cleaning up their plates. They really are honest and tell when they haven't. I just tell them to try their best."

Some of the children have enormously long lists of presents they want. "I wonder how many will get all they want," she said. "I don't make any promises about gifts, I just tell them I'll do my best. Most parents can't afford to buy everything they want."

Mrs. Von Tungeln said most of the youngsters are really reasonable with their Christmas wishes. "I had one little girl who just asked for a coloring book for herself and then asked for a few things for her sisters and brothers," she said.

Mrs. Von Tungelns' own children, Elise, 3, and Jacob, 23 months, haven't seen their mother as Santa. "That would be kind of a sticky situation," she said.

"What's really fun is when children from Elise's nursery school come in and I can call them by name," she said. "The kids are really flabbergasted that Santa knows their names. Sometimes their parents don't recognize me and they're really surprised too."

Some of the youngsters bring their Christmas letters to her at the store, which gave Mrs. Tungeln another idea.

"I called the Petaluma post office and told them to hold all the Santa letters for me so I can answer them," she said.

Mrs. Von Tungeln's lively Christmas spirit has spread to others at the store and some fellow employees have volunteered to help her write the letters.

"Mervyn's agreed to pay for the stamps," she said. "It's really a good place to work."

The Von Tungeln family moved to 1166 San Rafael Drive in Petaluma two years ago from Las Vegas, Nev. Clark Von Tungeln operates the Bumbleberry restaurant at Northgate Shopping Center in Terra Linda.

"I can't think of any more fun job to have . . . to sit and listen to kids who believe in you," she said. "Sometimes I don't see why they're paying me."

Mrs. Von Tungeln said she has been surprised by the amount of publicity she's received from her job. The most exciting part has been an invitation to appear on Gary Moore's "What's My Line" show in New York. "I'm not sure when I'll be going. They just keep telling me 'soon'," she said.

Mrs. Von Tungeln will also don her Santa outfit for school Christmas parties and to entertain friends children.

"I hope I can find a job like this every year," she said. "Too bad the work's so seasonal."

deputies.

Gaddini gave this account of the events that led to the shooting:

Two men went to the Marin City apartment of Barbara Morgan, age unknown, at about midnight and kidnaped at gunpoint Miss Morgan and a friend, Gloria Brooks, also of Marin City.

(Gaddini said Miss Morgan may have known one of the men.)

They threatened to kill the women unless they received money and drove to the home of Miss Morgan's father. Miss Morgan went into the house alone and telephoned police before the men kicked in the door, forcing their way into the home.

Windows were broken in a struggle between the kidnapers, Miss Morgan and her father before Sgt. Froberg, Curley and deputy Larry Sorensen arrived.

Wallace was captured when he leaped off a porch into some bushes outside the Park Circle residence.

Matthews climbed out a window and jumped off the porch, ignoring shouts by the deputies to halt, and was gunned down when he wheeled and pointed his pistol at the officers.

committee, embraces proposals to make the waterway a more vital and attractive part of city life and city scene.

The canal committee also supports creation of additional marina berths along the waterway, a major new launching ramp outside the canal mouth, a lagoon park under the Highway 101 overpass and construction of flood gates at the Grand Avenue Bridge.

The committee endorses increasing public access along the canal, a new marina in the canal area, and like the other committees and the chamber a bayfront park along the city waterfront.

In addition, the canal group has asked the city to study canal flooding problems, including a proposal that drainage from new development be diverted from the canal. The committee has also cited a need for a "major street" to bypass canal neighborhoods to provide access to the city waterfront and a need for interchange improvements at Highway 17 near the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

OBITUARIES

Arthur Rowe Waller, 56

Funeral for Arthur Rowe Waller of Greenbrae will be held at 1 p.m. tomorrow in the Greenbrae Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints.

Waller, a golfing enthusiast, collapsed and died Saturday after playing at the Indian Valley Golf Club. He was pronounced dead at Novato General Hospital at 1:10 p.m., according to the Marin County Coroner's office. The cause of death is believed to be a heart attack, but Waller had no history of illness, coroner's deputies said. He was 56.

Waller and his family moved to Marin County in 1956. He was a salesman for the Simonds Abrasive Division of Wallace and Murray Corp. He was a member of the Greenbrae Ward, and a leader for the Explorer Scouts in Greenbrae. He was a member of the Indian Valley Golf Club and had served as chairman of the membership, tournament and handicap committees.

He was born in Salt Lake City, and was an outstanding student athlete there.

He is surviced by his widow, Elizabeth B. Waller of the home; two sons, G. Craig Waller of Novato and Jerry R. Waller of Huntington Beach; his father, William Waller of Salt Lake City; a brother, Earl Waller of Morgan, Utah; three sisters, Emily Mulvaney and Dorothy Eardley of Salt Lake City and Ruth Rodda of Morgan, and six grandchildren.

Friends may call until 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Williams and Heffernan Mortuary, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

The family prefers memorial contributions to the American Heart Association.

MARY RIEBLI

Mary J. Riebli of Petaluma, a longtime resident of Southern Sonoma, died in a local convalescent hospital yesterday after a lengthy illness. She was 84.

Born in Hollister she had lived in the North Bay area 62 years, mostly in the vicinity of Cotati and Penngrove, moving to Petaluma in 1971. Her home was at 1423 Western Avenue. Her husband, Frederick P. Riebli, whom she married in Hollister, died in June of 1972.

She was a member of the Maple Leaf Club, St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Cotati and St. Vincent De Paul Catholic Church in Petaluma.

Mrs. Riebli is survived by a son, Carl Riebli of Penngrove; a daughter, Alice Burmester of Petaluma; a sister, Flore Buhber of Hollister, eight grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Mass of Christian Burial will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at St. Vincent De Paul Catholic Church in Petaluma. The Rosary will be recited in her memory at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Parent Funeral Home in Petaluma. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

ERNEST TANZI

Funeral has been held for Ernest Tanzi, retired mechanic for the City of San Rafael.

Tanzi, 61, died Wednesday at a local hospital following a long illness.

He was a native of Marin and California. At the time of his death he lived at 7 Norma Court, Novato.

He was the husband of the late Alma Tanzi.

Survivors include a daughter, Gerrie Ryan of South Dakota; a brother, Wesley Tanzi of Lagunitas, and two sisters, Dorothy Zgraggen of San Francisco and Edna Lieben of Walnut Creek.

EARL ARMSTRONG

Funeral for Cmdr. Earl Frank Armstrong (ret.) of Palo Alto, father of Frank Armstrong of San Rafael, will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church in Mountain View.

Armstrong, 64, died Thursday in an Oakland hospital after a short illness.

He was born in Portland, Ore., and served with the Navy from 1927 to 1956. In recent years he had been a business consultant.

In addition to his son in San Rafael, he is survived by his wife, Claire M. Armstrong of Palo Alto; three other sons, Marshall, Roger and Alan Armstrong, all of Palo Alto; four grandchildren; his brother, Edward R. Armstrong of Portland; his sister, Theresa Walling of Salem, Ore.; a half brother, Richard E. Armstrong, and a half sister, Esther L. Garwood, both of Portland.

Burial will be in Willamette National Cemetery, Portland.

PERCY PURCELL

A Mass of Christian Burial for Percy John (Jack) Purcell, father of John Purcell of San Rafael, will be held at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Oakland.

Purcell died Saturday in Oakland following a brief illness.

He was born in San Francisco and was a retired member of the Ship Clerks Local No. 34 of the International Longshore Workers Union.

He also is survived by his widow, Harriett Purcell of Oakland; another son, Harry Purcell of Alameda; a sister, Anita Countryman of Walnut Creek, and three grandchildren.

The Rosary will be recited at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Hagy-Keenan Mortuary, Alameda. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Oakland.

EVA ANDERSON

The funeral for Eva I. Anderson, a 16-year-resident of San Rafael and Mill Valley, will be held at 4 p.m. tomorrow in the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

Mrs. Anderson died Saturday in a local convalescent hospital after a lengthy illness.

She was a member of San Rafael Chapter No. 215, Order of Eastern Star and the First Presbyterian Church, and formerly was active with the cancer dressing program of the American Red Cross in San Rafael.

Mrs. Anderson was born in Buffalo, N.Y. Her late husband, Lt. Col Horace L. Anderson, died during World War II.

She is survived by one son, William A. Anderson of Larkspur; two sisters, Beatrice Fettes and Viola Netterfield; two brothers, Charles Abbott and Arthur Abbott, all of Canada, and three grandchildren.

Burial will be in Des Moines, Iowa. The family prefers memorial contributions to the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

PATRICK GILROY

Mass of Christian Burial for Patrick Anthony Gilroy of Petaluma will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at St. Vincent De Paul Catholic Church, Petaluma.

The 18-year-old youth died at his Western Avenue home Saturday, apparently choking to death. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Gilroy.

He was born in San Francisco and came to Southern Sonoma five years ago with his family. He was a June graduate of Petaluma High School and was active in the boys club and little league. Since graduating, he worked for the Barber Sign Co., in Petaluma.

He is also survived by three brothers, Scott, Casey and Kelly Gilroy, all of Petaluma, his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gilroy Sr. of San Francisco, three aunts and four uncles.

The Rosary will be recited in his memory at 8 p.m. today at the Sorensen Funeral Home. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. The family prefers memorial contributions to the National Little League in care of Leonard Svinth of 1541 Mountain View Avenue, Petaluma.

LEWIS M. SIMES

Lewis M. Simes, 85, a retired law professor who had lived in Mill Valley the past 12 years, died today at a local hospital after a short illness.

Simes last taught at Hastings College of Law in San Francisco.

He was born in Clarence, Mo., and was reared in Missouri and Kansas. He was the son of a Methodist minister.

He earned a bachelor's degree at Southwestern College in 1909, another bachelor's degree and a law degree at the University of Chicago and then his doctorate in jurisprudence at Yale University and later a law degree at Southwestern.

Simes taught high school for a time in Montana and then entered the Army during World War I.

After the war he began his major life's work, teaching law first at the University of Montana and later at the Ohio State University School of Law.

He taught at the University of Michigan law school from 1932 until being named emeritus in 1959. At that time he was invited to join the faculty at Hastings and moved with his wife, Blanche, to California.

He was an authority on law dealing with property, trusts and estates and was the author of several books, including a widely used text, "Future Interests in Property."

Simes was a member of the Order of the Coif, and the American and Michigan bar associations.

Since moving to Marin, Simes was active in the Westminister Presbyterian Church in Tiburon, where he served as an elder.

Simes and his wife both enjoyed music and played in string quartets together. They also traveled extensively.

In addition to his wife of the family home at 12 Glen Drive, Simes is survived by two sons, Paul Simes of Fairfax and Lewis E. Simes of Montrose, Los Angeles County, and four grandchildren.

There will be no funeral. His ashes will be scattered at sea.

Problems Feared In Soyuz Flight

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet officials said today the six-day Soyuz 16 space flight cleared the way for next summer's Russian-American space linkup, but Western experts expressed fears the mission might have run into minor problems.

The Tass news agency said Soyuz 16 and its two-man crew landed safely yesterday morning about 180 miles north of Dzhezkazgan in the Kazakhstan steppes of Central Asia.

Western experts said the announcement departed from past landing accounts because it did not say how close Soyuz was to the planned target.

They said the mission's main goal of testing the docking system for the first time in space conditions was probably successful, but they noted the careful, muted praise of the mission by Soviet officials indicated the flight might have ran into some difficulties.

Tass said the two-man Soyuz 16 crew, Lt. Col. Anatoly V. Filipchenko, 46, and civilian flight engineer Nikolai N. Rukavishnikov, 42, were in good condition following the Siberian landing. They will form the Soviet backup crew for the linkup with the Americans.

"A preliminary analysis of this flight shows that we are on the right track," Soviet cosmonaut Lt. Col. Alexei A. Leonov said on television late last night. "It opens the door for the joint venture."

Leonov will command the two-man Soviet Soyuz crew that will attempt a linkup with a three-man American Apollo spaceship for two days next July.

Konstantin Bushuyev, the Soyuz project director, said "the most important thing was to see the new docking system under actual flight conditions, and in this sense the flight was successful. The results are excellent."

U.S. space experts had previously expressed some anxiety about the Russians' technical readiness to carry out their part of the joint program because of recent Soviet space setbacks.

Trouble Postpones Rocket Launching

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Engineers worked around the clock today to ready the Atlas Centaur rocket that will carry West Germany's Helios sun satellite into space for a delayed launch tomorrow.

The launch was originally scheduled for yesterday at 2:16 a.m. EST but had to be postponed when engineers discovered a last-minute problem in the rocket's boost pump area.

Resignation Talk Denied By Simon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon has denied reports he is threatening to resign.

"I have absolutely no intention of resigning, period," he said. "People are always speculating in Washington and most of the time incorrectly," he added.

New York Milk Strike Goes On

NEW YORK (UPI) — Striking milk deliverers and plant workers defied their union and rejected a new contract yesterday, leaving the city virtually without fresh milk again today.

John Kelley, president of the 2,800 member Teamsters Local 584, said the members voted 1,008 to 487 against the pact, just 10 votes more than the two-thirds majority required to reject a contract.

The strike, which began Wednesday night, has affected 10 million consumers in New York City and some of its suburbs. Deliveries to hospitals and nursing homes, however, were not interrupted.

Deliverymen apparently opposed the package partly because under it, their commissions would have continued to be based on the current wholesale price of milk.

Kelly, who worked out tte agreement early Saturday with the Greater New York Milk Dealers' Committee and recommended approval, said talks have been rescheduled for today.

Celebrating the Grand Opening of California Canadian Bank's New Courthouse Square Office at Fourth and A Streets, San Rafael

Open House Tuesday and Wednesday December 10 and 11–10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"A Courthouse Square Christmas, 1872"

Here at one of Marin County's most historic locations, California Canadian Bank is proud to dedicate its all new, full service San Rafael Office. You are invited to join us at our Open House and celebrate the holiday season as it was in 1872, the year the old Marin County Courthouse was built. By then our Bank was completing its first decade of service in San Francisco. Since we are one of the "old-timers," we wanted to honor Courthouse Square in a special Grand Opening program prepared with the assistance of the Marin County Historical Society. It's all for your enjoyment; it's all free of charge. So please come to our Courthouse Square Christmas!

See Old San Rafael

Antique prints, maps, photos and artifacts from bygone days will be displayed in our lobby. This special "mini-museum" exhibit has been assembled for our Open House by the Marin County Historial Society from private collections and promises to be an outstanding event.

Enjoy Free Holiday Refreshments

Have some holiday punch or coffee and cookies with our compliments.

Take Home a Free Christmas Ornament

You'll find Christmas ornaments in four handsome colors. We invite you to select one in your favorite color for your own tree. And take home a candy cane for the children.

Win at Our Hourly Drawing

Old fashioned Plum Puddings and Fruit Cakes for your holiday table. We're giving one away at 11 A.M., Noon, 1 P.M., and 2 P.M. on December 10th and 11th. To enter our drawing simply fill out an entry blank provided in our lobby. Winners need not be present at time of drawing.

See Our Old-Fashioned Christmas Tree

Decorated in old time style, our tree will remind you of Christmas celebrations from long ago.

It costs you a lot of money to get sick these days.

You'd think it would be free. Wrong! How about somewhere around $150 a day for your hospital alone? Add to this your surgical and professional charges, and you've got yourself a bundle. Now, how do you cope with this? Easy!

You might look into our Blue Cross $250,000 Major Medical Plan with no hospital deductible! If you should get really sick, this is the Plan to have. Because this is the Plan to protect you and your family against a quarter-of-a-million dollars in hospital, surgical, medical and professional expenses.

After a low $100 deductible, it provides Major Medical protection that pays 80% of the covered surgical and medical services necessary to give you a total health care program.

And, do you know the odd thing about it? You never know if you're going to get really sick. Maybe that's why this Blue Cross Plan is especially important to you.

What a plan! All we would ask is that you fill out the coupon—or better yet, give us a call. Either way, we'll send you the full details on this $250,000 Major Medical Plan—and others, if you wish. That's all. Just the details. No one will call on you. Rest assured.

Hefner Is Drug Probe's Target

HUGH HEFNER
Playboy prince

CHICAGO (UPI) — The posh world of Playboy Enterprises and Playboy prince Hugh Hefner has come under scrutiny by federal drug investigators in a probe of suspected illicit drug activities, authorities say.

A federal grand jury is looking into allegations that cocaine, barbiturates and marijuana were used by employees and guests at Hefner's Playboy mansions in Chicago and Beverly Hills.

At least 10 present and former Playboy employees, including Playboy bunnies and Hefner aides, have been subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury, investigators said.

Published reports noted that two of those subpoenaed already have appeared before the panel and that eight more were to appear before the grand jury tomorrow.

While Hefner was not among those subpoenaed, investigators say he is a prime target of the probe.

The Chicago Tribune yesterday quoted a key source close to the investigation as saying: "Investigators are shooting at him (Hefner) and he's in a helluva lot of trouble. There's no doubt about it."

It is alleged that Hefner knew of the illicit goings on at his luxurious playboy pads and sought to cover up the activities.

The grand jury investigat on is the result of a year-long federal Drug Enforcement Administration probe of drug activities at the Playboy mansions.

The new case is an outgrowth of the arrest and subsequent conviction of Bobbie Arnstein, 32, Hefner's social secretary, on charges of conspiring to distribute a half-pound of cocaine.

The government's chief witness at Miss Arnstein's trial testified that he attended a cocaine "testing" party at the Chicago Playboy mansion.

Miss Arnstein has been given a provisional 15-year sentence for her part in the drug conspiracy, but there was speculation that she may be given immunity from further prosecution if she cooperates with prosecutors in the grand jury probe of the Playboy mansion drug case.

Pickets Halt Miners Returning To Work

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Construction workers set up picket lines at several mines today, delaying the return to work of fellow United Mine Workers union members.

The 6,000 construction men said they would picket until they get a new contract.

Picket lines were reported in three southwestern Pennsylvania counties and in southern Illinois. Miners returned to their homes when they saw the picket lines.

"It's sort of an unwritten law," said Tom O'Brochta, president of UMW Local 6330 in Greene County, Pa. "When other miners picket, we don't work."

The UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association signed a new contract Thursday, and miners were to be back at work no later than today.

But a separate contract agreement between the construction workers, also UMW members, and the Association of Bituminous Contractors was never reached and talks bogged down Saturday over what an industry spokesman said were "three or four major stumbling block areas."

Union leaders from President Arnold Miller down to the district level sought to head off any picketing by the construction workers while efforts to hammer their contract continued in Washington.

UMW District 4 President John DiBiase of Uniontown, Pa., said Miller sent telegrams to all construction locals urging them to cease the unauthorized picketing, which halted scattered mine operations Friday and Saturday.

Picketing, the telegram said, would only hamper the negotiations.

District officers also told the workers a tentative agreement would be reached soon.

But a faction of disgrunted western Kentucky miners, opposed to Miller leadership and the contract, traveled through the coal fields yesterday seeking to disrupt the back-to-work movement.

"We may be going back to work, but we're going back under protest," said Ernest Moore, of UMW District 23, a stronghold of former union president W.A. (Tony) Boyle.

Moore said Miller used "scare tactics" to win ratification of the main coal contract last week by telling them a vote to reject would prolong the strike several more weeks.

Moore said his group contacted miners in Illinois, Pennsylvania, Wyoming, Arizona, Kentucky and West Virginia, urging them to honor all picket lines and encouraging construction workers to "picket everywhere" until there is a settlement.

Recession Laid To Tight Money

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, ranking Democrat on the Senate Banking Committee, today blamed the Federal Reserve Board's "super-tight money policies" for a deepening recession.

"By refusing to provide the credit our system needs the Federal Reserve Board is restraining job-producing activity in the private sector and making major public employment ... a greater and greater political probability," Proxmire said.

The Wisconsin Democrat, whose committee has jurisdiction over the board, said the solution to the problem of higher prices and fewer jobs is "to give the private sector its head."

Voters In Greece Reject Monarchy

KING CONSTANTINE
Rejected by voters

ATHENS (UPI) — The new Parliament swore allegiance to the Greek republic today following the sweeping victory of republican forces in yesterday's referendum that abolished the 142-year-old monarchy of exiled King Constantine.

Of an estimated 4.5 million Greek voters, 3.2 million, 69.2 per cent of the total, voted for the republic and 1.4 million for the monarchy. Abstentions were 26 per cet.

In the first session of the new Parliament today, the 300 representatives who were elected last month swore allegiance to "constitution and the laws of the state" instead of the king.

The session then recessed until the afternoon when it was expected to elect a speaker.

A government spokesman said Constantine should wait a time before trying to return as either king or private citizen as he has said he would.

"The premier does not know what the King is thinking but thinks it won't be wise for Constantine to return for some time," deputy Minister of Press Panayotis Lambrias told newsmen.

Thousands of chanting Greeks danced in the streets to celebrate the rejection of the monarchy.

The republicans won large margins in the traditional monarchist bastions of southern Greece as well as in the country's antimonarchist urban centers.

The decision cleared the way for the Greek parliament, holding its first session today, to begin work on a new constitution and prepare for presidential elections.

King Constantine, who fled into exile during the military dictatorship, learned the results in seclusion at his home outside London. An aide said he planned to issue a statement today.

"We don't need a king, we want to be free," 19-year-old student Nicos Georgopoulos said in Constitution Square, where Greeks had gathered in 1843 to force their first king, Otto od Bavaria, to give them a constitution.

Constantine Caramanlis, Greece's conservative premier, said a 60-year period of political uncertainty "has been decisively eliminated" by the referendum.

George Mavros, leader of the nation's moderate left opposition, said, "There are no victors or vanquished. The people as a whole have won."

Left-wing militant Andreas Papandreou called the referendum Greece's "first major step in the struggle for national independence and popular sovereignty."

The 34-year-old king, Greece's seventh monarch, went into exile in 1967 after failing to oust the colonels' junta that had seized power in a military coup earlier in the year.

The military regime officially deposed Constantine and abolished the monarchy in 1973 after an abortive coup by royalist naval officers.

Government sources said Constantine might be permitted to live in Greece as a private citizen because his poor showing in the referendum reduced the threat of future royalist challenges.

The king recently said he hoped to return —win or lose. An antimonarchist leader answered: "All he has to do is get Greek citizenship and have a passport issued."

THE GREAT TEDDY BEAR CONTEST

Third Grade teacher Marge Hasslinger and students Sunne Bowders, Todd Donaldson and Steven Lukshin admire mounds of cuddly friends during Teddy Bear Day at Old Mill School in Mill Valley. The idea was conceived by teacher Elaine Brunn's first and second grade class, and students wandered from room to room Friday to view the hundreds of stuffed bears and other beasts brought to school. Every bear received a ribbon because, students decided, "there's no such thing as a teddy bear that isn't a winner."

Death Thoughts Begin After 30

CHICAGO (UPI) — When does the thought of his own death first cross a person's mind?

A University of Chicago psychiatrist believes it comes at about age 30 when a person gives some thought to approaching death and "to all that he hasn't done and all that he wants to do."

Dr. Chase Kimball is an associate professor of the university's Pritzker School of Medicine which has been seeking ways to serve the patient for whom there is no hope.

In the process, he has reached some conclusions about attitudes of death as people grow older.

For the child up to age 6, reality is often in the power of words. Verbal denial of the fact of a loved one's death is tantamount to proof that the fact does not exist, Kimball said.

"The absence is considered temporary and the 'bad mommy or daddy' will return as they always have before. Children at this age are therefore likely to suffer little anguish at pending death," he said.

Between the ages of 6 and 10 a child may become preoccupied with death and killing, but only in terms of fantasy.

"The life and death game embodied in 'cowboys and Indians' — the falling down with one hand over the mortal wound — puts the concept of death into one more consistent with adult concepts . . . but children provide their own antidote to death by resurrection — reversing roles or changing games," Kimball said.

"The first real understanding death occurs in adolescence, and if the death does not involve a close friend or relative, the experience will still be somewhat unreal," he said.

"As a person reached 30, he gives some thought to approaching death, to all that he hasn't done and all that he wants to do, a realization that often leads increased activity or to depression.'

Hearing Slated On Development

A public hearing on the proposed Madera del Presidio development will be held before the Corte Madera Planning Commission today at 7:30 p.m. in town hall.

Cal-West Properties plans 250-260 condominiums and 60-65 single family homes at the base of Tiburon Ridge east of U.S. 101.

Also on the agenda is a discussion of the master plan for Corte Madera Center being put forward by its owners.

Cancer Cure Predicted In 20 Years

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Prof. George E. Palade of Rockefeller University in New York City predicted yesterday that mankind will conquer cancer fairly soon —perhaps within 10 to 20 years.

The Romanian-born Palade, 62, co-winner of this year's Nobel Prize for medicine, told a news conference, "The problem is how to make the cell defense system more efficient as we do now.

"One way or another, work is proceeding and there is hope that in the near future we will solve the problem."

He went on to say it was risky to make predictions but added, "My uneducated guess is that it will take 10 years minimum, with 20 years being a more realistic figure.

"We have to educate our guesses, or we may be cheating the public by saying five years. At this time we are still searching for the basic facts before the solution."

Palade said thanks to the electron microscope and two decades of work, "We now know how a cell is organized. Within the cell there are organs which have been isolated and studied and we know in general the ways how the cell functions.

Automakers Predict Another Sales Slump

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit's automakers say they expect already bad sales to slump even further in December, hardly denting a near record inventory of unsold cars that could last until late February.

Because of the 86-day supply of cars jamming lots, 13 assembly plants will be closed and 163,000 auto workers idled this week. By Christmas, more than 215,000 auto workers will feel the effects of the sagging sales.

By the end of January, 112,000 U.S. and Canadian auto workers will still be on indefinite layoffs, approaching the 115,000 idled during the depths of last winter's energy crisis.

Domestic auto sales this month are expected to total about 425,000 cars, off about 26 per cent from last year and the worst nonstrike December since 1959. It also will be the lowest sales for any month since the slump began in mid-September of last year, even before the start of the Arab oil embargo.

"December will come out like November — slow," one industry analyst said. "It could be the bottom of a trough that will take some time to come out of."

Another analyst, sizing up December prospects, commented: "You can't compete with Santa Claus for sales in December."

The sagging December sales will put 1974 in the book at about 8.85 million cars, including 1.4 million imports.

U.S. Leadership Decline Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau of Canada says the United States has suffered "a decline of moral leadership," but remains in a predominant position of leadership among nations.

"I mean that the mood in the world over the past few years has been one of less acceptance of the overwhelming moral and political and economic leadership of the United States," Trudeau said in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report. He added that "the period of uncertainty over the past year or so in the United States has also resulted in a decline of moral leadership."

But Trudeau said the decline has not been enough to produce "a great vacuum" and is not necessarily dangerous.

High Court To Hear Cross-Exam Question

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide if prosecutors can question defendants during their trials about why they remained silent when first questioned by police.

Federal appeals courts have handed down conflicting rulings on whether such cross-examinations violate the defendant's right to remain silent by implying he was trying to cover up an alleged crime.

Oral arguments will be heard later this term and a written opinion will follow.

When a person is arrested, he is advised of his right to a lawyer and his right to remain silent under questioning.

In two cases appealed to the Supreme Court, defendants refused to answer police questions during their initial interrogation. By the time they went to trial, the defendants had alibis. Prosecutors, in an effort to cast a shadow on the alibis in the minds of jurors, questioned the defendants about why they failed to mention the alibis to police.

The Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ordered a new trial for William G. Hale, who was convicted of robbery. Chief Judge David Bazelon referred to the landmark 1966 Supreme Court ruling in Miranda v. Arizona, which gave defendants the right to remain silent. He said prosecutors could not try to use the silence against defendants at trial. The government appealed.

But the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals in New York refused to apply the principle to the conviction of Cecil Grafton Rose, who was charged with impersonating a federal officer. That court pointed to a 1971 Supreme Court decision which said if a defendant gives conflicting statements to police and during trial, he can be questioned about the discrepancies. Rose appealed his conviction.

The Court did not accept Rose's appeal for review but left it pending on the docket.

In other actions today, the Court:

Let stand a lower court order awarding back pay to a large group of workers after a small group of them proved they were discriminated against because of race.

Dismissed appeals of a decision that states cannot withhold child welfare payments when the father is unemployed because of a strike or for misconduct.

Agreed to examine a New York state regulation reducing rent allowances to welfare families if the household includes an adult not responsible for the children.

Let stand a decision by the Ohio Supreme Court upholding Cincinnati's ordinance against noisy, boisterous, rude or insulting language.

State Working On Plan To Cut Employee Car Use

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Department of Transportation (Caltrans) is working on a plan to provide transportation for state employees and cut down on the number of cars driven to work each day.

The plan — involving the use of 12-passenger vans in an expansion of the car pool principle — could go into effect early next year on a pilot basis if accepted by Caltrans and Department of General Services administrators.

The plan suggests that the state lease three of the vans for a year and fill them with Caltrans employees to and from work. The employees would pay for the service depending on the distance they travel.

Jack Derby, Caltrans car pool coordinator, emphasized that the proposal still is in the preliminary stages with no guarantees it will be approved.

He said there is a question of legality and the plan may need enabling legislation before it can be tried.

The proposal calls for the assignment of a van for each 12 member pool. One member would be the driver and keep the van overnight at his home. He would not pay for the transportation.

Detente Changes 'Voice' Policies

NEW YORK (UPI) — James Keogh, director of the United States Information Agency, said yesterday detente with Communist bloc nations has required a change in policies of the Voice of America.

In an interview published in Time magazine, Keogh said VOA program managers must be "sensitive" to American foreign policy.

"Detente has changed what we do in USIA..." Keogh said.

"That policy is that we do not interfere in the internal affairs of other countries. We're not in the business of trying to provoke revolutions."

Different Approaches To Assessment Appeals

Since Sept. 27, the Marin County Board of Assessment Appeals has been meeting all day every Friday, and all day Wednesday twice a month.

It expects to continue to do so until next June, to resolve some 1,500 property assessment appeals. Since first instalment property taxes are due tomorrow, most of those appealing are paying under protest and will get refunds if the appeals result in reduction of their taxes.

Members of the appeals board are Julius H. Selinger, Edward P. Morphy, and James O'Connell. Alternates are David G. Cohn and W. Bruce Shafer.

THE MARIN COUNTY Board of Assessment Appeals was created by the board of supervisors in 1967. Prior to that, the supervisors themselves sat as a board of equalization to hear appeals from the county assessor's appraisals of property.

The chore of hearing assessment appeals was, of course, onerous to the supervisors — even though they did not amount to 1,500 per year. This year's total is a new high, according to the assessor's office.

And so, the supervisors created the appeals board, thus freeing themselves for more pleasant chores, or perhaps for things they felt more important.

MEANWHILE, up in Humboldt County. . .

The Humboldt County Board of Supervisors last week turned down a proposal by its county administrator that an assessment appeals board be created.

Proponents of creating the appeals board presented a familiar argument: It would "take assessment appeals out of politics."

Humboldt's county supervisors saw it otherwise. And outgoing Supervisor Ray Peart gave a cogent reason why the elected supervisors themselves should serve as board of equalization.

"I don't think we'd have been as active in pushing for timber taxation reforms if we hadn't heard the appeals which pointed out the inequities," said Peart, as quoted in the Eureka Times Standard.

This would apply not only to timber and timber lands. County supervisors are more likely to appreciate the plight of all taxpayers if they are forced to sit through hearings on assessments. As a result, they are more likely not only to push for tax reforms but also to be more careful how they spend the taxpayers' money.

Another Humboldt supervisor, Don Peterson, commented: "There appear to be only three possible arguments in favor of this new system: the supervisors don't have enough time, the supervisors don't want to, or the supervisors don't have the required expertise."

He dismissed the first two out of hand and said the third occurs only rarely.

OBVIOUSLY, Humboldt County supervisors take a different view of what they should do to earn their $17,500 per year than Marin County supervisors take of what they should do to earn their $16,800 per year.

Marin's assessment appeals board functions well. But it is just another diversion of the governmental role to an appointive commission.

We don't elect officials just to delegate their responsibilities.

Tax Deadline Proves Sad Lack Of 'Relief'

By EARL G. WATERS

By now it must be clear to those who tomorrow must face up to property tax payments that the relief promised again and again by the legislature is but an illusion.

Despite the increased aid given to local governments and schools by the state and federal governments, despite the freeze on tax rates imposed on local governments at the insistence of Governor Reagan, the tax bills are higher than ever.

This erosion of homeowner property tax relief, intended by the state-subsidized exemptions and the governor's freeze, comes about simply by increasing the assessed valuations.

For Californians, this is the second time that the exemption approach to relief for homeowners has been completely eroded in short order by local governments. The first of $750 was wiped out within two years. The governor then sought an increase to $1,750 and attempted to prevent the eroding of this by a freeze on tax rates.

FOR EVEN THE HARDEST heads in the legislature, it should now be obvious that there can be no homeowner relief without a freeze on both tax rates and assessed values. For the state to continue to pour funds into local governments as a means to relieving local property taxes, without first shutting the door tight on both rates and values, accomplishes nothing excepting to encourage more spending by local officials.

And, encouragement is the last thing they need. The appetite for spending exhibited by local governments, especially the schools, is insatiable.

In their zeal to tax and spend, spend and tax, and tax and spend, one is reminded of the lemmings. These small rodents, native to the Arctic, are possessed of a congenital desire for self-destruction. They, too, have an insatiable appetite. They increase enormously in numbers, exhausting their food supplies. They move steadily across the countryside, regardless of all obstacles, committing devastation in their line of march. Always advancing in the same general direction, they ultimately reach the sea where they plunge in and drown.

One cannot change nature, but taxation is a political being, not a creature of nature. It can be changed.

THE HIGH PROPERTY taxes cannot be excused by saying the assessor must increase the valuations because of state law. That would not matter if, on the rise of valuations, the tax rate went down accordingly. But it doesn't go down. Local officials just don't seem to know how to stop spending. They don't seem to realize there is a limit of burden to which the homeowner can be put. They should look around. Despite the valuations placed upon homes, they aren't selling. Young people simply don't have the money. We are becoming a state of apartment and mobile home dwellers. If they don't stop spending, even the fellow who now possesses a home will no longer be able to keep it. Like the lemmings, the tax-eating officials are marching steadily to destruction.

The fallacy of the present system of home taxation is adjusting to current market values even though there is no intent to sell. One buys a home at $10,000, spends his life paying for it, only to find he is now living in a home valued at $40,000, which is beyond his means because of taxes. It's still the same home.

Assemblyman Gene Chappie, R-Cool, a farmer, is one who has recognized the injustice. He is proposing legislation which would freeze assessed home values. While the details of his proposal haven't been perfected, the aim is to treat homes for what they are, just homes and not speculative land purchases. Property taxes would remain constant until such time as a home is sold. If, at that time, a profit were realized on the sale, taxes would then be assessed on the sale.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON:

Strauss Keeps Democrats United In Triumph

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — This has been Bob Strauss' circus, the first and conceivably last of its kind — dog-and-pony show, juggling act, the works, with Strauss as ringmaster and wild animal trainer, trying to keep hundreds of natural enemies from tearing each other apart. If the Democratic Party is still a singular body this week, the participants here will congratulate themselves. Otherwise, they will be happy to shovel the blame onto Strauss, the national chairman, who began delicately arranging the midterm miniconvention as soon as he was sworn in.

Strauss' role in bringing the Democrats at least as far as the remote new Kansas City airport without walkouts or irreparable breaches cannot be exaggerated — although some of the party's ideologues have tried to minimize it.

THIS IS THE FIRST term in recent history when the Democrats have been without either an incumbent president or an immediate past presidential candidate to function as titular leader. James M. Farley himself, Bob Hannegan, J. Howard McGrath, Steve Mitchell, Paul Butler, John Bailey, Larry O'Brien — none of Strauss' predecessors has been forced to operate in such a sensitive period.

For never has the party been so far down as when he replaced Jean Westwood two years ago next Monday. It had gone from the tear gas at Chicago to near victory in November, 1968, then been rescued from bankruptcy largely by Strauss' exertions as national treasurer. When he took the chairmanship, it had just lost 49 out of 50 states. Anybody who wanted the chairmanship at that point had to be a little funny.

But Strauss could afford it, he wanted it, he got it, and last month the Democrats had a smashing off-year election success. Of course, that was attributable to Nixon and the economy. But the Democrats seemed as relatively harmonious after it as they did two years before, at their nadir. They are somehow coexisting through famine to feast. That is where Strauss comes in.

WHEN HE TOOK office he said before he left the platform, "I am owned by no group." That is the way he has proceeded, and the fact that he has should not be news. That is what the chairman of a diverse party in desperate need of healing should do. What makes it only slightly newsworthy is that some Democrats actually criticize him for it.

"All he wants is to please everybody and be liked by everybody," one of them said. "And that's not part of the job description." If it is not, it ought to be. Well, not absolutely. There was a time when the Democratic Party still sheltered bigots who thought blacks should be shut out. It is asking too much to be neutral, to want to be loved by all such. But today, if those still exist they are so outnumbered as to keep their mouths shut.

Strauss himself sees his job not so much as having everybody love him, as keeping all those activists who believe they are possessed of the only truc faith from being too mad at each other.

"I perceived it my responsibility to rebuild the old Democratic coalition, to put the Democratic Party back in the middle of the Democratic spectrum, where it can reach out to all sides," he said last week end. "And when you build a coalition, when you put many people together . . . no one's going to be totally satisfied . . ."

And sure enough, no one is. But there is one man, probably among those present here, who will be everlastingly grateful to Strauss if things continue the way political and economic trends have pointed for months now. He might be Lloyd Bentsen, Henry Jackson, Morris Udall, Jimmy Carter, John Glenn, Reubin Askew, Hugh Carey, or even George Wallace — or somebody nobody has thought of yet.

He is the next Democratic candidate for president.

STROUT IN WASHINGTON

Chauncey Depew On A Fast Flight To Frankfurt

By RICHARD L. STROUT

FRANKFURT, Germany — I am in window seat 14-C on the left side of the plane a third full, and the captain says we are now passing over Boston and will reach Frankfurt in seven and a half hours. It is cozy in our bottled-up little world. Stewardesses have modeled life-preservers and told us what to do if oxygen masks descend, and now we are ready for a choice of movies, "W," a suspense thriller, or "For Pete's Sake" with Barbra Streisand.

It is the minute I have waited for. I draw a brown book from my briefcase with the front page autographed "R. D. Thompson, Denver, Colo., May 6, 1890" (whoever he is). It cost 50 cents at a church fair: "The Orations and After Dinner Speeches of Chauncey M. Depew." Just the thing for a long night under the stars.

He was one-time senator, successor of Commodore Vanderbilt on the N.Y. Central, and foremost ceremonial speaker of his day. His picture, in wing collar and mutton chops, looks out in the frontispiece — strong face, a hatchet nose, and a mouth with a touch of humor.

BARBRA STREISAND begins to flicker soundlessly and I learn that Chester Arthur is president, and that we are celebrating the hundredth anniversary of the inauguration of President Washington (April 30, 1889).

"There are no clouds overhead and no convulsions under our feet," he tells the audience at Federal Hall, New York City. "Our population has grown from four to 65 million." He calls the roll of material success and big figures and even seems to smack his lips a little over the gigantic size of the late Civil War whose cost he relates statistically. His spellbinding peroration is the kind that made him famous.

One thing worries him in the orations that follow: "The president grows as a potential factor of government." We must watch that, he warns; population is growing and soon, "with a hundred millions of people and a commensurate civil service, with the blind fury of intense political passions, with an able, audacious and unscrupulous president, anxious for re-election, and sustained by his party in anything which secures it, the situation will be full of danger."

Others have noted this more recently. I look up, pondering. Whoever "Pete" is, in the film, he is having extraordinary misadventures and people with earphones are grinning. Who is real, "Pete" or Depew?

HERE IS HIS CELEBRATED "Oration at the unveiling of the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty enlightening the world, New York Harbor, Oct. 28, 1886." It is sound Franco-American amity stuff, though it tells me a little more about the Marquis de Lafayette than I want to know. He is eloquent, all right, and gets his effects masterfully though he uses the word "sublime" a good deal. A couple of themes, I begin to discern, run through the speeches: The United States is blessed in having almost no Army and Navy and a minimal foreign policy, and it is also afflicted by the operations of anarchists. Again, there is mortification at what has happened to the merchant marine, and Depew, who is an ardent Republican, can't help blaming the Democrats in Congress.

He has met, he observes, most of the public men of his time, and he sadly deplores a falling off in their caliber: "There is not at this hour in public life a single recognized and undisputed leader of a great party," he tells a convention of college delegates at Syracuse in May, 1882. "The Congressional Record is a morass of crudity and words, whose boundless area and fathomless depths none have the courage to explore."

Well, well, that sounds fairly modern. . .I push on.

Alas, for the Republicans! In an after-dinner speech at the opening of the new Produce Exchange in New York, May 6, 1884, he unhappily reports that some of the most able members of Congress "have been carried out by the tidal waves in the last election." That was the one that elected Cleveland, I guess, the first Democrat since the war. Even in the humming cabin 90 years later I feel the jolt it gave him.

THE FILM HAS ENDED now; gradually the cabin settles into silence8like a hushed dormitory with pillows and blankets. Sunrise appears unexpectedly with no relation to Washington time.Once more I glance at Chauncey Depew. Can it be true what he told the New York State Press Association, at the Madison Square Theater, June 19, 1883: "Exceptionally great men have disappeared from American public life, and the dreary drivel of ordinary legislative debate produces an insatiable longing for the fresh vigor of the newspaper article of which it is a thin paraphrase"?

He is contemporary in his yearning for "great men," and it is something for a reporter to ponder as we begin our descent. We go smack down at what looks like a solid wall, there is a minute of swirling cloud and vapor and then — those are the green fields of Europe below. It is either 3 a.m. or 9 a.m., take your choice, and it is either Chauncey Depew's 1880s or the present.

Russia Facing Double Trouble From China And Satellites

The Soviet Union is in double trouble, facing a two-front cold war with their Communist "allies."

On Russia's eastern front in Asia, Russian efforts to reach a truce with China on disputed border claims have fallen apart and relations are worse than before.

On Russia's western front in Europe, Romania's popular Communist leader, President Nicolae Ceausescu, is pressing an independent movement which strikes at the heart of Soviet control of its satellites.

WHAT CEAUSESCU IS REALLY AFTER: It looks innocent on the surface. He is making it formal Communist doctrine — as far as Romania is concerned — that Communist states should be "sovereign" and that Communist parties should be independent of outside control.

To the Soviet Union this is not inncoent at all.

It rejects the Brezhnev doctrine which asserts the right of the Soviet Union to intervene militarily at will whenever Moscow disapproves of the way another Communist state is running its affairs — as in Czechoslovakia in 1968.

It asserts the right of each Communist Party to choose its own "road to socialism" and not to be forced to follow Moscow's dictates.

From Russia's standpoint, this is dangerous disloyalty. It is precisely the basis which Tito used to take Yugoslavia out of the grip of Stalin.

RUSSIAN-CHINESE DIFFERENCES WIDENING. Some analysts were saying recently that the "Communist monolith" was coming back together, that Peking and Moscow were about to make up and be friends.

Not so. The differences are greater than ever.

Moscow rejects a proposed nonaggression pact unless China gives up its claim to disputed border territory.

China rejects a nonaggression pact unless Moscow will withdraw Soviet forces from disputed frontier areas.

Apparently neither will negotiate unless the other capitulates in advance.

THE FORD-BREZHNEV ARMS AGREEMENT — WHAT IT MEANS.

It means that a real step ahead in nuclear arms control has been taken.

It means that no progress was made toward nuclear disarmament.

It is welcome news that the United States and the Soviet Union have put a ceiling on offensive missiles. But the ceiling is so high that both sides will have to produce more missiles to reach it.

Worried about both China and the United States, it is probable that Moscow wouldn't settle for less.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Free Music Programs Helpful To Institutions

At a time when the media is surfeited with stories of economic frustration and political self-interest, I think the Marin community should be aware of a group in our midst that is doing an outstanding job of helping others. The Bread and Roses agency in Mill Valley is providing free musical talent to institutions throughout the county. In recent weeks, individual musicians as well as rock groups have come to the Juveniel Hall to present entertainment. Not only have they donated highly professional and artistic talent worth a great deal on the commercial market, but they have brought warmth and an interest in young people that no amount of money can buy. I know I speak for the staff and youngsters at the hall in saying a heartfelt thank you to Mimi Farina, Janice LaBao and Lucy Alexander who organized Bread and Roses and entertainers like Jeffree Cain, John Flynn, the Rowen Brother, the Begger Theater Puppeteers, and all the others who have made possible these evenings of fun and good feeling at Juvenile Hall.

Too Much Collection Of Non-Relevant Facts

As a dedicated enemy of snooperism in all forms, I inquire why in the name of reason and efficiency police officers investigating a report that a front door has been tampered with are required to ask for the resident's date of birth?

I have no criticism of the two officers who efficiently and courteously went about the business at hand. They were only following "procedure," which brings me to another of my favorite aversions. I know the reply would be, "Oh, that was just a matter of standardized forms; we sometimes need such data."

Standardization can, and often does, defeat its own purpose in both private and public affairs by cluttering up time and facilities with vast amounts of irrelevant facts, near-facts and non-facts. . .

Against a trend that rises like a tidal wave, there is need for a massive reduction in the collection and keeping of records that often are nobody's damn business.

Corte Madera, Developer Hahn Head For Court Showdown

The wheels are inexorably grinding, relentlessly dragging the Town of Corte Madera into the courtroom to face Ernest W. Hahn.

The most recent turn of the wheel came last Monday night, when the town council rejected a $10 million damage claim by the developer who wants to build a regional shopping center alongside U.S. Highway 101.

It is now "only a matter of days" before Hahn seeks relief in Marin County Superior Court, according to his attorney, Anthony P. Brown of the San Francisco firm of Pillsbury, Madison and Sutro.

TOWN OFFICIALS are girding for the confrontation.

Town Atty. Albert J. Bianchi, for example, is seeking an assessment of the town's case from a San Francisco law firm. Bianchi feels the case is strong, but wants a concurring opinion because his own might be considered biased.

Town officials also are trying to track down former councilmen and other persons involved in the original negotiations with Hahn, to get statements from them about what went on.

Hahn is charging town officials led him on by making him think they wanted the center, and then — after he sank millions of dollars into the project — turning around and trying to scuttle it.

The council was sympathetic to him when he began his quest in 1971, but anti-center residents mounted a recall campaign, replacing three councilmen with others opposed to the project. Things went downhill for Hahn from there.

Possibly damaging to the town's case could be resolution, passed unanimously on Feb. 7, 1972, in which Corte Madera agreed to finance a long list of offsite improvements if the development proceeded. Bianchi feels it was worded in a way that did not bind the town, however.

HAHN STILL HAS an application pending with the Army Corps of Engineers for a fill permit for the center. The environmental impact statement for that, which has been revised and added to several times, is in its final printing in the San Francisco district office of the corps, a spokesman said.

From there it will go to the division office, also in the city, to be reviewed for 30 days. Then it goes to Washington.

In a letter to the corps on Oct. 22, the council opposed the fill permit, a move which apparently convinced Hahn that his chances for getting the center were slim enough to make the suit his next move.

Tadzhik Teen-Agers Twist To Pop Music

By ELIZABETH POND
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Dushanbe, U.S.S.A. — It is the most popular place in town on a Saturday night — or a Sunday night, or a Wednesday night. All the teen-agers of Dushanbe, capital of the Tadzhik Republic, gather in one spot, it seems, Lenin Park.

The main attraction is not the carnival rides, which have closed for the evening, or the good Tadzhik restaurant that is out of student price range, or even the lively ping pong matches under the trees.

The main attraction is what must be one of the best pop groups in the Soviet Union, the Sitora (Star).

The band belts out "Black Magic Woman" and its own compositions with a flair that belies its student and schoolboy membership.

On one recent fall night there were only 600 to 700 teen-agers twisting under the stars, a drop from the usual turnout. The rest, one boy explained, were off harvesting cotton. So were two members of the mixed Russian-Tadzhik band, which reduced the group to two Russians and two "Pamirs" from the nearby mountains.

In the whole group only one was actually studying at the music institute. The others were students at the agricultural institute or the institute of physical culture, or still in high school. All of them wrote music, however, absorbing Western popular style from records, creating their own sounds out of Russian and Tadzhik roots. "Tadzhik folk rock" they enthusiastically dubbed the result.

Their biggest problem is getting equipment, they said, and they eagerly asked a visiting Englishman about British guitars. Their instruments and amplification were burned up in a fire last year, their second year together, and they have not yet replaced them to their complete satisfaction.

The Sitora is strictly a live group. It has not made any recordings, as there is only one studio in town, and the people who run it reportedly will not let anyone else use it.

The band makes out fine financially, however. Each member gets paid 76 rubles ($96) a month for playing three nights a week in the park. And on top of the university stipend of 45 rubles ($590) a month, "that's quite enough for students," one musician commented.

The "Tadzhik folk rock" that blared out of the Hungarian loudspeakers set everyone to dancing — most in couples, some in segregated circles of boys and girls reminiscent of Central Asian folk dances. Everyone enjoyed himself, and the one fight that broke out was quickly stopped by the police, who hauled off one of the brawlers.

Nobody was much conerned about the incident, and the dancing resumed immediately. "It happens every night," one student explained casually, and added that the police would probably release the boy soon. The fights were not between Tadzhiks and Russians, he said, and they were not especially over girls. They were just ordinary fights.

Dress was mostly modern. Boys wore European shirts and pants rather than the traditional robes with red sashes. Many of the girls sported short haircuts rather than the traditional long braids.

There was one traditionalist present, however, and he gave the ultimate compliment to the newfangled music. An old fellow in a quilted coat and beaded skullcap, he happily performed an ancient village dance all my himself oblivious to the alien gyrations going on around him.

Then a few teen-agers noticed him and decided he had to be modernized. So they began dancing together and getting the old man to bend his knees and sway his trunk more. By 10 p.m., closing time, grinning from ear to ear, the fellow was doing the twist.

The Questions Are Tough, But Santa Claus Makes It

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "The committee will come to order. Gentlemen, we have before us today the nomination of Kris Kringle, otherwise known as St. Nicholas, or Santa Claus, to be vice president of the United States.

"Please be seated, sir. We are delighted to have you here to clear up certain matters that have arisen with respect to your confirmation. Do you have a question, Senator Byrd?"

"THANK YOU, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Kringle, our records show that in the past 10 years you have given away more than three billion toys, dolls and other playthings to approximately 60 million good little girls and boys.

"This committee would like to know the circumstances under which these gifts were made."

"Certainly, senator. And may I say I appreciate the opportunity of coming before you to answer certain allegations and insinuations that have appeared in the media and elsewhere concerning my activities.

"First of all I would like to say I have never at any time given a good little boy or girl a toy with the expectation of receiving something in return.

"Occasionally, a boy or girl may leave a cookie or some other goodie for me on the mantlepiece. But since they are always in bed when I come down the chimney, there is no possibility of making any deals with them."

"I'M PLEASED to hear you say that, Mr. Kringle. But if you expected nothing substantial in return, why did you give a way billions of toys?"

"I'll be glad to answer that, senator. These gifts were given to encourage goodness among boys and girls, some of whom could not otherwise afford to be good."

"The thing that disturbs me, Mr. Kringle, is whether one man should be in the position of determining who has been naughty and who has been nice."

"Let me just say that these gifts represent only a small fraction of the production capacity of my family's toy shop at the North Pole.

"When I give away three billion toys, it's like the average person giving some child a tricycle, an electric train, or a white fur muff."

"I'M NOT QUESTIONING, your right as a private citizen to give away toys. But as I see it, it wouldn't be proper for the vice president to be popping in and out of chimneys with a sack full of toys on his back."

"I understand your position, senator, and I pledge to this committee that if I am confirmed I will pack away my red suit and turn my reindeer out to pasture for the duration of my term."

"In that case, Mr. Chairman, I see no reason to further delay action on this appointment."

Judge Rules Listerine Doesn't Cure Colds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Trade Commission judge ruled today that Listerine mouthwash does not prevent or cure colds or sore throats as the company has claimed for years.

The gargle may indeed "kill millions of germs on contact," administrative law Judge Alvin L. Berman said, but it also leaves millions more alive. He said further that none of that has anything to do with cold fighting in the first place.

In an order still subject to review by the full commission, and to appeal in the courts later if upheld, Berman directed Warner-Lambert Co., the makers of Listerine, to run corrective advertising for two years. In all future advertisements for Listerine for that period the company would have to confess:

"Contrary to prior advertising of Listerine, Listerine will not prevent or cure colds or sore throats, and Listerine will not be beneficial in the treatment of cold symptoms or sore throats."

Berman said the company was guilty of false and misleading advertising for the whole print and broadcast cold fighting ad campaign.

"The use of Listerine will not prevent or result in fewer colds or sore throats, will not cure colds or sore throats, and will not cause colds or their symptoms, including sore throats, to be less severe than they otherwise would be," he said. "And the ability of Listerine to kill germs is of no medical significance in the prevention, cure or treatment of colds and sore throats."

Warner-Lambert issued a statement saying it "completely disagrees" with the finding and will fight it as far as possible.

"The judge has apparently chosen to ignore the most significant evidence, including well controlled scientific studies which attest to the effectiveness of Listerine in the treatment of colds and their symptoms, and the testimony of scientific experts from leading medical institutions," it said.

The company also said the decision did not challenge Listerine's "bad breath" claims, which it said is the main reason people buy the product in the first place.

to save at First Federal

And with good reason. The day of post-hole saving has passed. The tradition of saving however, remains. If great-grandfather were able to insure his savings, there would have been little need to hide the family's hard-earned dollars in out-of the-way places.

Today, our accounts are insured up to $40,000.00 by an agency of the federal government. (Ask about how a small family of four can have savings insured up to $560,000.00.)

Our philosophy at First Federal nourishes the traditional approach—where we believe in peoples' dreams, and nurturing restoration of the past . . . yet, we are visionary—with an up-to-date involvement in the modern world, keyed to better service, the utmost in savings protection and highest interest allowable.

This then, is First Federal—where we believe in both worlds . . . traditional and modern.

Great-grandfather would have loved us.

Porno Star Is Happy In His Job

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Johnnie Keyes glows with delight, savoring the exquisite irony of it all.

The star of pornographic films, including "Behind the Green Door" and "Resurrection of Eve" (with Marilyn Chambers whose scrubbed, wholesome good looks grace boxes of Ivory soap), Keyes confesses with an earthy chuckle that he once was a Catholic altar boy during his youth in Cleveland, Ohio.

Although he still can recite some of the Latin, his lifestyle and beliefs have changed radically from his church-going days and he couldn't be happier about it.

Keyes, 34, lives in a bachelor apartment in the Sausalito Hills among the pieces of erotic art, posters from his movies and plays, soft pillows around low tables and a chess board prominently displayed, evidence that the man of the house is a serious player.

Angel Island squats in the distance, framed perfectly by a sliding glass door against which a large German shepherd presses a wet nose.

Keyes himself is smaller than one expects, slight and wiry. He is wearing a brushed denim outfit with matching platform shoes and a necklace of beads and the teeth of a large animal. He wore the necklace in Green Door and it has become his trademark. He's seldom seen — or recognized — without it.

He was the amateur lightweight boxing champion while in the Army, preferring fighting in the ring to the serious hostilities of his army days: the Vietnam war. There are boxing trophies and plaques scattered around the living room, proof of his claim that he never lost a bout.

But the most striking feature in the house is the voodoo altar against one wall, with its masks and feathers tacked behind a stuffed pheasant dangling by its neck from a chord attached to the ceiling.

"It's protection against evil," Keyes explains. "People have the wrong idea about black magic. There's nothing evil about voodoo itself, but when evil people get around it, they can't stand it. It makes them very uncomfortable."

This all fits in with his philosophy of unabashed hedonism. He believes in love, peace and the ferocious pursuit of pleasure and he feels nothing but pride about what he does for a living.

UNABASHED HEDONISM — Pornographic film star Johnnie Keyes discusses his philosophy of life as he sits in front of a voodoo altar in his Sausalito apartment. "I'm doing my little part to change things," he says. "People want to make life so hard when it can be so easy, so easy." (Photo by Bob Hax)

"The way I was raised, sex was a part of life. It wasn't taboo in our house. I'd rather do a sexual movie than one in which I kill somebody. I'd rather my son (a 15-year-old who lives in Cleveland) see me making love on the screen than making murder. There's enough hostility in the world.

"I'm doing my little part to change things, to help make people happy without oppression, without being manipulated. I sing to 'em, act to 'em and when they go home they think about it. People want to make life so hard when it can be so easy, so easy."

Keyes was born in East Africa and came to the U.S. at age four with his widower father, a jazz pianist. They settled in Cleveland where he was brought up around show business people, music and dancing.

His father sent him to Catholic school because he thought it would be good for the boy, but young Johnnie played hookey from Mass and went to the black church, where everyone seemed happier to him and where he felt more comfortable. "It was a rock and roll church. There was banging the tambourine and partying. The men called the women 'sister' on Sunday but on Monday it was 'mama'."

He made his nightclub debut at 12, singing in the Rose Room in Cleveland. In his teens, he joined the Rays and Silhouettes singing groups, which recorded the 1950s hits "Get a Job" and "Silhouettes on the Shade."

But hard drug use among his contemporaries sent him packing into the Army to escape. He was last stationed in Hawaii and there joined the company of the rock musical "Hair" after his discharge.

The show brought him back to the mainland and he later joined the San Francisco troupe of the musical, landing the part of Hud, one of the lead roles. From there, he went into the national touring company of "Hair" and in all logged three and a half years in the exuberant, physically-demanding production.

Five years ago, Marin became his home base and he did parts in several plays before meeting the Mitchell brothers and being hired for "Green Door," which became a porn sensation thanks to Miss Chambers and Keyes.

More hard core features followed and Keyes is currently finishing a full-length film shot in Livermore, "Sodom and Gomorrah," due for release in January. He also plays a comic drunk in "Sun Rah," a straight movie in Bay Area theaters.

After telling his story, Keyes is hungry. It's a short drive in his Lincoln for a late lunch at the Trident, where the parking attendant recognizes him and mentions that he is wearing a wig. "Cut my hair for a part," he explains, hustling inside, where everyone seems to know him, especially the waitresses.

He is warm, outspoken and generous. He seems to like everyone and everyone seems to like him. Over a Jamaican coffee and a plate of Sushi, indulging a taste for raw fish acquired in Hawaii, he explains that there is no secret to his obvious success with women, or with all people, for that matter.

"I love people," he says, "and I do have a way with the ladies, sure. I always have. It's because I respect. A lot of men can't relate to women, they are afraid of them."

Skin flicks are not Keyes' ultimate goal. He wants to direct and produce movies and he is writing a script about the struggle by blacks in America. He feels he's two years away from that, but he isn't worried about it. And no one could accuse him of not having a good time in the meantime.

Pets And Shots

CHICAGO (UPI) — If your child is going to get a new puppy or kitten for Christmas, don't forget vaccination, says Dr. Myron Brown, Abbott Laboratories veterinarian.

Lead Candle Hazard Is Pointed Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Ralph Nader group said yesterday people are again being exposed to a potential Christmas time hazard from millions of candles with lead wicks because the government has not acted to warn consumers about them.

The Health Research Group accused the Consumer Product Safety Commission of a "serious dereliction of responsibility" for not requiring the candle manufacturers to paste warning labels on the candles advising buyers that the wick contains a lead wire at the core.

The group, which is financed by Nader's Public Citizen Inc., unsuccessfully tried to get the commission to ban the candles a year ago. At the time, it said lead fumes given off when the candles are burned could result in dangerous lead levels in the home, possibly leading to lead poisoning.

The lead wire is used as a core around which the wick is wound. As the candle and wick burn the lead also oxidizes and the group has claimed the result could be dangerous lead levels in the air, particularly in closed rooms.

TV Sets Are Blamed For 196,000 Fires

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defective television sets ignited 196,000 house and apartment fires during the 12-month period ending last April, according to the first government survey designed to pinpoint the cause of 5.5 million household and personal property fires.

The report, released today by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, disclosed that 326,000 persons were injured in blazes including 141,000 hurt in residential fires.

Appliances were the leading cause of fires in nearly 3.5 million cases. Gas stoves were blamed for 360,000 fires, electric stoves for 855,000 and television sets for 196,000.

Electrical wiring was implicated in 435,000 cases, the commission said.

Cigarettes were the source of ignition in 365,000 fires and matches started another 248,000 fires.

The commission already has announced plans to write mandatory safety standards for the manufacture of television sets. A two-day public hearing earlier this year produced reports of fire fatalities and electrocutions caused by faulty sets.

Bunker Hill Battle 'To Live' Again

By STEPHEN WEBBE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BROOKLINE, Mass. — As ar as Steve Rich is concerned e couldn't have planned it etter if he'd been there.

"It's a textbook dramatic sto-y," he exlaims excitedly, rock-ng back in his chair in the ustard-colored Brookline car-iage house that holds his of-ice.

The object of his enthusiasm? The Battle of Bunker Hill.

Rich is vice-president of White Oak Design, Inc., which is creating a theater-museum depicting the battle for Raytheon Historical Foundation Corp., a nonprofit foundation established by the electronics manufacturer, Raytheon Corp.

The foundation, which fosters educational and historical activities relating to the birth of the Republic, is spending $1 million on the 12,000-square-foot theater-museum.

Construction has already begun on land leased from the Massachusetts Port Authority (Massport) in front of Hossac Pier on the Charlestown waterfront.

For the past six months the White Oak team has been busy designing the theater-museum, and staffer O'Jay Stine has just completed a model of the interior of the building where 150 people will be able to watch a 16-minute presentation on the battle, which erupted above Charlestown on June 17, 1775.

Instead of sitting down and facing the stage, visitors to the theater-museum will stand up and watch the bitter engagement unfold on a semi-circular scaffolding structure around the walls, where a variety of screens, tableaux, and scenic elements are hung.

Color slides will flash on the screens, and spotlights will pick out the tableaux and scenery as the din of war, shrill of fifes, and voices of embattled participants pour out of seven loudspeakers scattered around the roof and walls. A screen on the stage will depict the burning of Charlestown.

"The four main characters in the presentation," explains Rich, "are Maj.-Gen. William Howe, who commanded the British forces at Bunker Hill, Col. William Prescott who led the Patriots, and two fictional characters — a British junior officer called Colin and Eben, a foot soldier and farmer from Connecticut."

Although fictional, the latter are "amalgams" of soldiers who actually took part, stresses Rich, adding that, with slight deviations, they speak the words others used on that day.

Apart from incidental bugle calls and drum rolls, the battle depiction is studded with music. Whenever Colin is speaking the "British Grenadiers" wells up in the background, and Eben's observations are accompanied by a popular song of the times called "Lolly Day."

A specially composed ballad is used to summarize developments in the unfolding battle, and a rousing "Yankee Doodle" strikes up as the firing ceases.

After living with the battle for six months, what does Rich feel about it?

"Well, he muses, "it was viewed as a debacle by the British and Americans at the time. After all, the Americans were routed and the British lost so many men. Nobody was proud of it."

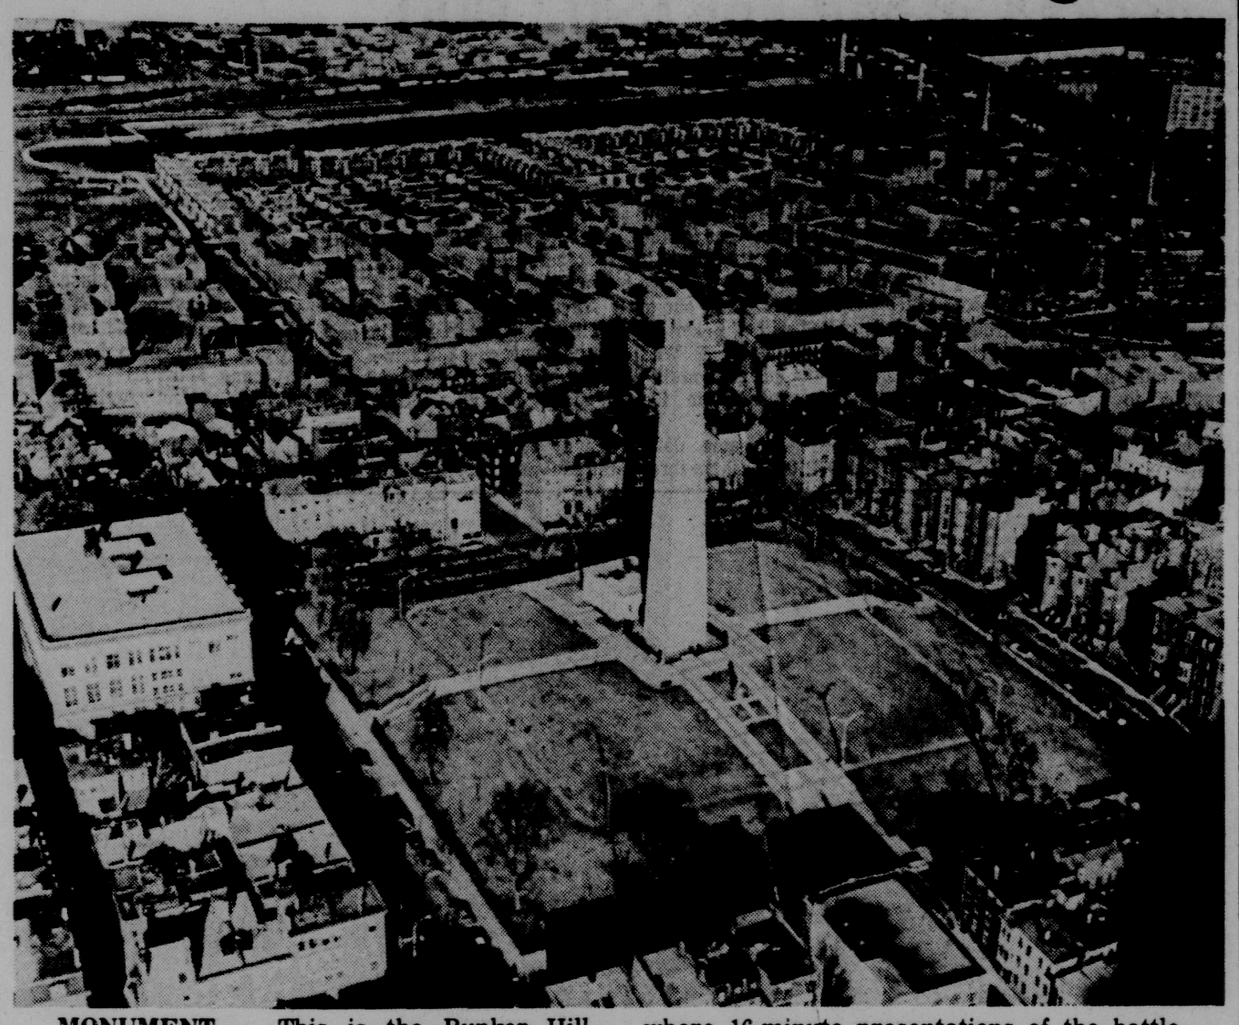

Rich feels it was "military folly" for General Howe to land in front of the hilltop redoubt and launch frontal assaults on the Patriot position. But he observes that British morale was so low the general needed a speedy victory.

"He should have gone around Charlestown Neck and sent a contingent to the colonials' rear and wiped them off the peninsula," Rich observes.

"Howe was a broken man afterwards," he adds. "It was a very demoralizing thing to see British troops go up a hill and get slaughtered."

The museum, which is to be operated by Massport personnel, will open May 15, 1975 — just over a month before the 200th anniversary of the battle. Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

MONUMENT — This is the Bunker Hill Monument in Charlestown, Mass. Nearby, on the waterfront a new museum is rising where 16-minute presentations of the battle of Bunker Hill will be shown starting next year.

MODELS — O'Jay Stine works with Bunker Hill models that are being used to create a sound-and-music representation of the Bunker Hill battle.

Strict Oxide Standard Will Not Be Recommended

SACRAMENTO (AP) — That strictest-ever oxides of nitrogen standard for 1977 model cars won't be recommended by the California Air Resources Board's staff after all, according to a new report.

The standard, recommended last month, called for a 6 per cent cut between 1976 and 1977 model years in the allowable output of oxides of nitrogen for cars and small trucks.

The ARB staff also called for a maximum of .41 grams per mile output of hydrocarbons, compared to .9 grams for 1976.

But in a new report to be presented at the board's meeting in Los Angeles Wednesday, the staff is recommending that the standard for oxides of nitrogen be left at the 1976 level, the Sacramento Bee reported yesterday.

It said the standard for hydrocarbons is unchanged in the new report.

The reason for the rollback on oxides of nitrogen, said the Bee, is that Detroit complained the higher standard would drive the cost of 1977 cars up by as much as $300 and would cut fuel economy by as much as 24 per cent compared to cars sold in other states with somewhat easier federal standards.

The automakers said that the standards in the staff's new report will drive the cost per car up about $150 and cut the mileage as much as 16 per cent.

Monument Visited By Pope Paul VI

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI has paid a traditional visit to the Monument of Mary near the Spanish Steps in Rome to mark the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Virgin.

The Pope rode to the monument yesterday in an open limousine, waved to a crowd of several thousand, then prayed there.

Fred Jensen Seeking Council Reelection

San Rafael City Councilman Fred E. Jensen, who has served on the council since 1955 and is the senior member, today filed for reelection.

The 74-year-old Jensen, who once said he hopes to continue serving the city as councilman until he dies, said he is running for reelection because "San Rafael is my life . . . it's the only life I have."

FRED E. JENSEN
Files for reelection

Jensen said the major issue facing the city is downtown redevelopment, and noted that he and council colleagues will confront that issue tonight in city hall as they consider redevelopment sketch plans.

"I have no specific plan right now for redevelopment, but I'm going to (vote for) whatever will benefit the city the most," he said.

Jensen described himself as a "low tax advocate" and said he has helped keep the lid on city tax bills during his 20-year tenure on the council.

"A councilman should represent all the people in San Rafael . . . and I always have and always will," Jensen said. "I'm not up there trying to sell my own philosophy," he added.

The veteran councilman said he supports geographical distribution of city open space funds so that all sections of the city benefit, and said he supports "open communications" between the city fire and police departments and citizens.

Jensen, a native of San Francisco, is a retired contractor. He is a member of the San Rafael Sanitation District Board, as well as the San Rafael Yacht Club, Marin Masonic Lodge 191, the California Bodies of the Scottish Rite, the Islam Temple of the Shrine and the San Rafael Goldennaires senior citizens club.

He is a 31-year resident of the city and lives at 246 Center Street.

Jensen follows Mayor C. Paul Bettini in filing for reelection.

The seat of incumbent John A. Miskimen is also up for election March 4.

Others taking out papers for municipal races are Anise N. Turina of 4 Dias Way, John A. Starkweather of 612 Las Colindas Road, and Richard C. Fox of 127 Humboldt Street, all seeking election to the council; Marion A. Grady, seeking reelection as city clerk; Edward M. Krug of 101 Cresta Drive, Apt. 16, seeking election as city attorney; city treasurer John B. Averett, and Jon Baker of West Castlewood Drive, both seeking election as city tax and license collector.

In addition, board of eudcation incumbent Francis X. Kelly has taken out papers.

MEG SHIELDS

Meg Shields Is Novato's Junior Miss

Meg Shields, 17-year-old senior at Novato High School, was selected last night as Novato Junior Miss at the annual pageant at the Novato Community House.

Miss Shields, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Shields of 1241 Leafwood Heights, was awarded a $250 scholarship and will compete in the state Junior Miss pageant in Santa Rosa, Jan. 26-Feb. 1.

Margaret Marsico of 57 Pico Vista, a San Marin High School senior, was runnerup and winner of $150 scholarship.

Cynthia Carter of 159 Michelle Circle, a San Marin High senior, was third and winner of a $75 scholarship.

Lynn Graniss of 2177 Feliz Drive, a San Marin High School senior, won the $25 award for the girl with the best spirit.

Court Asked To Order New Election

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Rep. Louis C. Wyman, R-N.H., today asked the Hillsborough County Superior Court either to "exclude illegal votes" in the Nov. 5 Senate election or order a runoff election.

At the same time he asked the New Hampshire Supreme Court to rule whether write-in ballots on machines must be counted. The Ballot Law Commission in 1962 ruled write-in votes could not be counted if the candidate's name already was printed on the machine ballot.

Wyman asked that if the court decided the rule did not apply, it bar the commission, the secretary of state, and Gov. Meldrim Thomson and the Executive Council "from certifying any winner in this contested election until all such write-ins are canvassed and counted."

His dual court action was announced by Wyman's lawyer, Stanley Brown, as the Ballot Law Commission resumed hearings on Wyman's appeal of the recount which took the Senate race away from him and gave it to Democrat John Durkin, a former state insurance commissioner.

Durkin, 38, overcame Wyman's 542-vote election night lead and won in a recount Nov. 27 by 10 votes. His winning margin was erased Friday when the Ballot Law Commission overruled some ballots and declared the result a tie.

During the weekend Wyman challenged Durkin to a new election, saying this was the only way to determine the voters' intent. Durkin rejected the challenge.

Graham Is Awed By Solzhenitsyn

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — American evangelist Billy Graham yesterday met exiled Soviet author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn to discuss world religious trends. Graham said he was amazed by the Russian's grasp of history and theology.

Graham said "Solzhenitsyn has the kind of intellect and moral courage that the world so desperately needs today. His grasp of both history and theology is amazing."

Graham is visiting several European countries to meet religious leaders. Solzhenitsyn is in Stockholm to receive the Nobel literature prize he was awarded four years ago.

One Of 14 Bogus Los Angeles Checks Cashed For $902,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A bogus Los Angeles city treasury check for $902,000 was cashed in New York City two weeks ago and another 13 checks are unaccounted for at the city's computer center.

The Los Angeles Times said funds from the $902,000 check may have been transferred to a Paris bank.

Meanwhile, City Controller Charles Navarro said a city worker must have helped rig a computer to pay $2.5 million from the treasury in a thwarted plan believed tied to Mafia interests.

C. Erwin Piper, chief administrative officer for the city of Los Angeles, confirmed that the $902,000 check had been cashed but he said the city had rejected payment.

Navarro said he didn't know who would stand the loss for the check "but I'm pretty certain it won't be the city."

The check was made out to and deposited with Crocker International Bank at 72 Wall Street with the designation that it was for transfer to the Banque de Paris.

It carried the same date, Nov. 18, 1974, that was on three checks totaling $2.5 million which were not cashed.

Navarro also confirmed that additional checks are missing.

"There are a total of 17 checks involved," he said. "The one cashed in New York, the three totaling $2.5 million and 13 others that we cannot account for."

Navarro said yesterday that a city worker must have helped in the bogus check scheme.

"It couldn't be anyone from outside," he said, noting that nobody is permitted in the heavily guarded Data Services Bureau area that controls the computer's check-writing functions without a special badge with a photograph.

Castro A Backer Of Women's Lib

MIAMI (UPI) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro says women's liberation is a means of achieving economic development.

In an address to members of Cuba's construction industry, Castro singled oat the role of Cuban women in the industry, saying, "It has been shown that in many activities ... women perform perfectly well and, in some cases, are more careful and more productive than men."

40 Arrested As Drunken Drivers

Forty persons were arrested by the California Highway Patrol on suspicion of drunken driving on Marin highways over the weekend.

In comparison, only 11 motorists were arrested on suspicion of drunken driving over the same weekend last year, according to information officer Myron R. MacNeil of the highway patrol.

MacNeil said pre-holiday traffic is about the same as last year and attributed the rise in arrests to a crackdown by the highway patrol on drunken drivers.

The arrests were made between Friday and Sunday.

BREAK WITH TRADITION

More Men Being Volunteers

By KAREN PETERSON

The Volunteer Bureau of Marin is breaking with tradition.

Take November, for example. Traditionally a slow month, this November was "never busier," reported Margery B. Sell, placement and training director.

But the biggest break from things past has come in the male/female department. Many more men, who once assumed volunteerism was women's work, are now seeking placement in one of the 110 agencies serviced by the San Anselmo-based bureau.

There was a time when one out of 20 potential volunteers was male. Now that ratio has risen to one out of three, said Mrs. Sell, and the men, as well as the women, are of "high caliber, with quality education."

"Hey, what's the need in my community" is the approach of many men looking for volunteer jobs. Ages vary, as do lifestyles, said Mrs. Sell. There are retired persons, students and working men willing to donate extra hours to, as one man put it, "bring the self, as a person, out."

These are men like Christian Boyer of Novato. During the day he works in San Francisco. On Monday evenings, he teaches a stroke patient to converse with his hands. Tuesdays at noon he teaches sign language to 28 hearing students; that evening he works with the San Francisco Recreation Center for the Handicapped where his work includes teaching a Stanford psychologist and staff sign language which they use to talk to a three-year-old baby gorilla. (The gorilla knows over 85 words, he reports).

That's not the end of Boyer's week. On Thursday evenings he works with Easter Seal crippled children; on the weekends, he is a friend or companion to one of Marin's blind or deaf children. And throughout the week he corresponds in braille to seven blind college students around the country.

Boyer brings more than 30 years of experience to his volunteer work and a proficiency of 85 words a minute in the language of the deaf and blind.

One who hopes to spend his life aiding others is 22-year-old Mark Giarretto of Greenbrae, a volunteer at a Larkspur school for children with learning disabilities.

On Thursdays, Giarretto helps 12 students with mathematics, reading, art and playground activities. A graduate of the Universityof California at Santa Barbara, Giarretto hopes volunteerism will provide a direction for his plans to continue his studies.

Barbara Fagersten, teacher, believes Giarretto chose volunteerism to experience different fields involving children, and she continued, "He's very good. He enjoys working with kids."

Job preparation is a big draw to volunteer work, said Mrs. Sell. "It's a way of gaining experience and references . . . a weapon in a highly competitive field."

At the volunteer office, the new surge of male applicants has caused one slight dilemma; they're a little harder to interview, laughs Mrs. Sell. "Men have to be put at their ease."

But some, she added, "are desperate for human contact because they're retired."

For women, there are three concerns leading them to volunteer work: one, inflation and extra income; two, children are in school and they're alone, and three, women's raising consciousness has made them see themselves "not as symbols but as providers. They want to sample what's out there, too," said Mrs. Sell.

The future, volunteer is not placed willy-nilly in a position by the Marin bureau, instead, said Mrs. Sell, "creative listening" is used to help sort out a person's interests.

And interests, too, are changing. In the past, people used to request only work with children or the handicapped. Today the field has opened. But the volun-

Yeagers Are Home Following Mission

The Ray Yeagers and their children are "home again" in Kentfield after more than five years in Bogota, Colombia.

Betty and Ray have served as Presbyterian missionaries in the Latin American city — Ray establishing an audio visual center, Betty working in the field of musical education and performance.

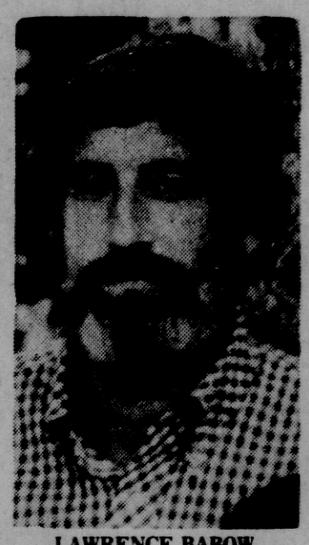

The visit home is in the nature of a family reunion: they brought with them their daughter Marion, 7, and last weekend were awaiting the arrival of son Steven, 20, from Richmond, Ind., where he is a sophomore at Earlham College, and of Douglas, 18, who is a freshman at Oberlin College, Ohio.

On Jan. 4, their son Robin, 22, who is studying music in Marin and performing locally as a guitarist, will be married to Virginia Hoy of San Rafael in a ceremony at the Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur.

The Yeagers are staying with Betty's parents, the Robert Hobarts of Kentfield.

After their son's wedding, Betty and Ray will drive to Mexico City, where they will spend eight months on a mission similar to theirs in Bogota. Ray will work in an audio

BARBARA BABOW

School Served Second Time By Family Team

Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Earl Babow are serving for the second year as presidents of the Mary E. Silveira Home and School Association. Their emphasis in leadership is to take on projects benefitting and bringing together people of the whole school community.

Going on sale this week will be the association's "Fun On The Range" cookbook, a collection of 180 recipes from members.

The association has also sold school sweatshirts, powder blue with the words Silveira Hawks emblazoned in red, a design selected by the students.

In September the association held a parent-faculty potluck dinner at Marinwood Community Center, and provided coffee cake and soft drinks to the faculty at their first work day of the year.

A family-faculty fun day is planned in spring.

The Babows combine their work for the school association with many other activities.

Dr. Babow, an optometrist with offices in San Francisco and Marinwood, is active in many professional organizations; he has served as director and trustee of the California Optometric Association and as president of both the San Francisco County Optometric Society and the Vision Conservation Institute. He enjoys assisting on Girl Scout campouts and serves on Marin Supervisor Robert Roumiguiere's Teen Beat Commission.

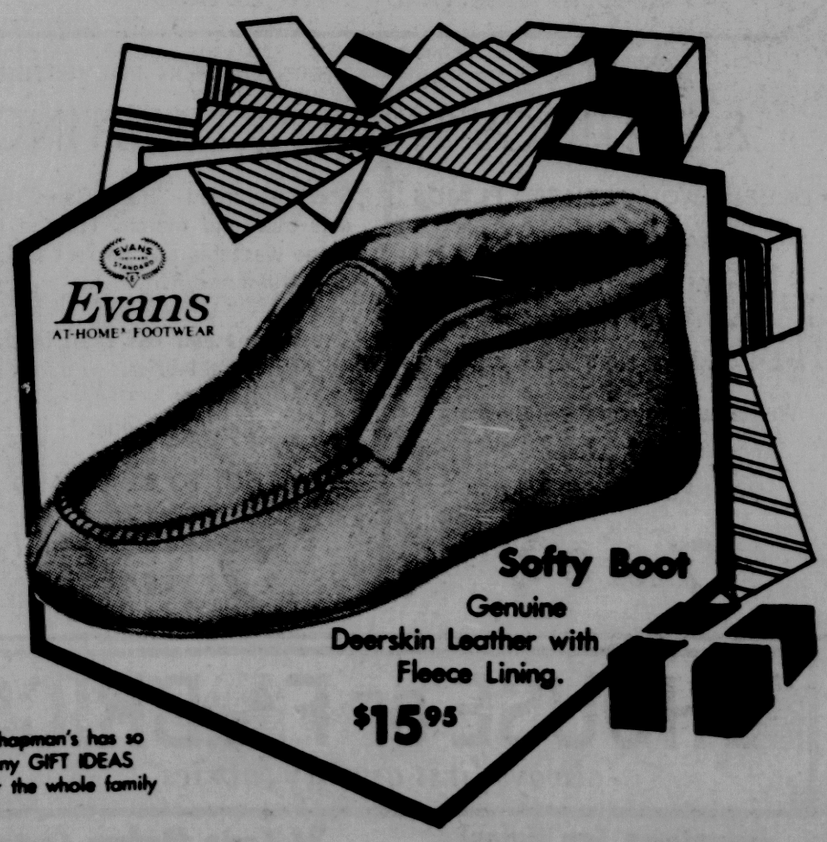

Barbara Babow has recently completed a term on the Casa Marinwood condominium owners board of directors and for two years has served as local co chairman for the Women's Division of the Jewish Welfare Federation. She will serve as

FESTIVAL OF TREES — AN EARLY SELLOUT

An estimated 4,000 persons jammed opening night festivities for the Festival of Trees at the Veterans Memorial Building Friday to see the lights, hear the carols, and buy up the enormous number of decorated trees and Christmas decorations made by members of the 14 guilds of the Boyd Marin Museum of Science. Chairman Marilyce LaNoue predicted a net profit to the museum of $25,000, from the two-day festival.

Joyce Ann Rosson Is Married

Joyce Ann Rosson became the bride of Anthony Ray Caldwell Saturday in a ceremony at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Mott in San Rafael.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindy W. Rosson, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Caldwell. All are residents of San Rafael.

Lisa Marie Rosson of San Rafael was her sister's maid of honor, and Larry Caldwell of Larkspur served as his brother's best man.

A reception at the Motts' home followed the ceremony.

Joyce is a student at San Rafael High School. Her brothers are Mark L. and Robert W. Rosson of San Rafael.

Anthony is a graduate of San Rafael High School. He is employed by Roto-Rooter in San Rafael. The bridegroom is also the brother of Richard and Paul Caldwell of Larkspur and Dorothy Augusto of San Rafael.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Mother Pleads With Gay Son To Get Help, Become Normal

DEAR HELEN:

I am the mother of a homosexual son. I love him dearly and always will, but believe me, the parents suffer, too. After reading a recent letter from a "gay," asking for understanding, I want to tell you how it is with us.

Our son is handsome, well liked and successful. He has a beautiful big car (ours is small and old) and money in the bank (we don't!)

In response to our offers to help him overcome his deviate ways, he acts like he despises us. His meanness makes our old age miserable.

We have been blamed for his turning gay, but, frankly, I think the children want this kind of life, and parents are handy people to abuse. Such parents hardly ever argue it wasn't their fault —just go on accepting society's criticism, and the increasing hatefulness of their child, and keep praying things will get better.

So here's an open letter to our son: We did not wish this on you. We live in fear of who you are with and how you will be disgraced. . .or blackmailed. We know your old age will be lonely and bitter, and that secretly you feel dirty-evil. So why do you take out your hate on the parents who love you?

Why won't you seek help and become normal? We yearn for grandchildren. — MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER:

Perhaps you parents need counseling too: When you learn to accept what you can't change (even though you can never approve), I think the relationship between you and your son will lose much of its bitterness.

DEAR HELEN:

I've been active in the women's rights movement for about four years, and I believe in it. But some of my fellow workers make me mad.

Now that I'm happily married and expecting our first baby this month, a few of them have checked me off as a "lost cause." They say I'll degenerate into a sweet little housewife type and will be no good to the movement anymore.

Please give me an argument to use against this attitude. — FOR PERSONHOOD

DEAR F.P.:

Why argue against an attitude that is patently wrong — especially since I'm sure most of your fellow workers already realize this. "Women's Rights" isn't a battle of the sexes. It's a movement to gain equality for everyone — something I'm sure you have in your marriage. Right? — H.

P.S. Maybe you can play it tongue-in-cheek with your militant friends, as did a friend of mine recently. Displaying her infant son to a visiting feminist she exulted, "Isn't he wonderful? I just know someday he'll be a United States President'. . .'s husband!" — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I've belonged to Gam-Anon for some time. It saved my life.

My husband was a secret gambler. I wondered about some of the stories he'd come up with when the money wasn't there for food or rent, but at the same time, I didn't want to believe he'd lie.

Today, I understand compulsive gambling is an illness. Thanks to our 12-step program. I am doing fine. For others who need help to face a mate's gambling problem, write or phone Gam-Anon, P.O. Box 253, New York, N.Y., 10022 — DOE

School Asking For Volunteers

Parents whose children will be attending kindergarten next year at John MacPhail School in Santa Venetia are invited to serve as volunteer aides in the morning kindergarten classes beginning Jan. 6.

The parents will bring their pre-kindergarten children, so both can have a first hand look at what is in store for them next September.

Parents who are interested in entering the program and can volunteer one or two hours one day a week on a regular basis should contact the school.

Craft Sale At Dixie School Set

Marin craftsmen are invited to show and sell their wares at the Old Dixie Schoolhouse Holiday Tea, Tour, Concert and Craft Sale scheduled from 1 to 5 p.m. next Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 14 and 15.

The public is invited to the holiday happening, to drink tea, coffee or hot chocolate and eat home made goodies, hear concerts by a number of Marin young people, buy Christmas gifts and tour the 110-year-old schoolhouse.

Proceeds will go to the Dixie Schoolhouse Foundation to help in the continuing restoration of the school which is a national historical landmark.

Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children under 14.

The event will be held in the schoolhouse at 2455 Las Gallinas Avenue in Marinwood.

Persons who wish to sell crafts at the fair, either on a donation or consignment basis, should deliver their work to the schoolhouse Friday, according to Sheila Berg of the foundation. Craft work may be delivered earlier, if necessary, to foundation secretary Priscilla Blinco at the Lucas Valley School. Student art work is welcome for sale or display.

Among music students of Joyce McIlvain who will perform at the affair are Beth Schneider, Tim Coln, Jo Ann Rowell, Margie Trimble and Scott Kluksdahl in a cello quintet, and violinists Anita Hoversten, Aileen Doyle, Marissa Pasquale and Julie Bergheer, violists Deborah Katz and Barbara Elkjer, cellist Tim Coln and bassist Scott Kluksdahl in a string ensemble.

visual education center there, and Betty will work in art, music and drama of the Caribbean at an ecumenical center.

One of the choirs she trained in Bogota, Betty reports, was heard round the world last spring when the Voice of America broadcast them in concert. Among selections they sang were works of Colombia's earliest composer Jose Cascantes, whose music had not been performed for 450 years until Betty researched it.

Following their stint in Mexico City, the Yeagers will head for Europe.

Betty has received a scholarship to study history and interpretation of Spanish music in Barcelona, and Ray a scholarship to study cinematography at an international institute in Lyons, France.

They hope ultimately to return to Bogota as misionaries, this time operating a hostel for foreign youth traveling in Latin America. Betty said she and her husband had cared for many such young people who needed to "get well or be bailed out" because they lacked knowledge of legal, social, and health conditions there. "There are many, many foreign young people languishing in jail in Bogota because they got involved in the heavy drug traffic there."

The Yeagers lived for many years in Kentfield before their assignment in South America.

MR. AND MRS. Richard S. Wright of Sausalito are on a wedding trip to Maui, Hawaii, following their marriage Nov. 23 at Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito.

The bride is the former Penny Lee Furtney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Herrin of San Leandro, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fox of Berkeley.

Wright is an attorney with the firm Wright and Parons in San Francisco and is also business manager for the Golden Gaters World Tennis Team. The birde is employed by Transworld Airlines in San Francisco.

The couple is living in Sausalito.

inches lost: 42½

"I came to Gloria Marshall very fat and very depressed. I was depressed and I didn't think anyone could help me. The Gloria Marshall counselors were so sweet and beautiful — that was an encouragement. I have succeeded in losing 26½ pounds and 42½ inches. I now weigh 114 pounds. My husband is so happy with the progress, it's like being on a second honeymoon. My two boys are also thrilled with me. This is going to be a terrific Christmas now that I have a new figure.

Thank you Gloria Marshall."

POPULAR CHRISTMAS GIFTS — A bright-colored macaw stares beady eyed (left), a teddy bear hamster, its coat rumpled, climbs over a hand, a French rabbit with soft, floppy ears and a sea anenome await delivery as Christmas gifts to someone in Marin or Southern Sonoma. Pet shop dealers report a growing tendency to diverge from the routine puppy or kitten as living gifts, though the baby dogs and cats still are popular. (Photos by Fred Arn)

Is Happiness Your Own Iguana?

By ERNEST MURPHY

Once upon a time, when happiness was a warm puppy, the Christmas shopper faced an easy decision if his list took him into a pet shop.

But no more.

It's not so much that cute little furry critters with big bows around their necks aren't popular any more — a lot of puppies are being sold even today.

All the same, a scaly, feathery and sometimes slimy exoticism has colored the pet market in Marin and Southern Sonoma.

Big items this year, according to local dealers, include: sea anemones, a salt-water animal a couple steps above the jellyfish on the evolutionary scale; iguanas, green lizards several feet long which, despite their mean looks, will stay happy if you keep them warm and throw them a head of lettuce a day; parrots, with many varieties commanding prices up to $1,000, and a novel rodent called the teddy bear hamster.

Of these, only the hamster could be called cute or cuddly — unlike the ordinary kind, the teddy bear hamster has a coat more than an inch long.

Hamsters, like pet rats, rabbits, snakes, iguanas and other exotic pets, cannot survive without special care and feeding, conscientious pet shop owners warn would-be Christmas gift shoppers. The giver should be sure that the intended owners — or their parents, it usually turns out — are willing to go the extra steps necessary to see that the pets are properly caged and regularly fed and cleaned.

Otherwise the pets soon become ill or actually turn into disruptive nuisances in the household until they either die unhappily or are bundled off to some nearby humane shelter.

This problem has led to restrictions on pet shop sales of baby chicks and ducklings — more popular at Easter than at Christmas — and to proposals to outlaw sales of rabbits, according to John Gill, executive director of the Humane Society of Marin County.

Birds and aquarium life seem to come to grief less often, Gill reported.

Sea anemones are common on local coastal rocks, but the ones in pet stores are tropical varieties noted for their colors. They mainly just hang around in an aquarium, sticking themselves either to a rock or to the side of the tank. Their myriad tentacles give them an appearance of an elaborate flower, if you like them, or of writhing noodles, if you don't.

The iguanas and parrots have been around awhile, although the pet dealers say they are now more popular than ever before.

Dealers said they still sell the small animals that used to be their bread and butter, such as canaries, parakeets, hamsters and tame rats and mice.

But, as dealer Arthur Thompson said, "When you sell one thousand-dollar macaw (a large colorful parrot) it makes up for a whole gang of canaries." He runs Elephant Walk, a pet store at 2232 Fourth Street, San Rafael, which deals only in birds, despite the name.

Glynis Davey, co-owner of Pets of Sausalito at 1913 Bridgeway, said she is doing a booming business in tropical aquariums, especially the salt-water variety.

"People are really getting into them," she said. "They get off on watching them and they're something you don't have to walk."

Many of her customers who buy sea anemones, she said, purchase clown fish to go with them. This species is the only fish which can swim amidst the anemone's tentacles without being stung and eaten. Other denizens of the salt tank, mostly costing between $10 and $100 apiece, are kept for their shocking-bright irridescent colors.

Barry Linder, owner of the Petaluma Pet Stop at 10 Kentucky Street, said his customers often put fresh-water aquariums on their holiday shopping lists.

While pest-control and quarantine laws have made most exotic pets more expensive than they used to be, Linder said fresh-water tropical fish have become a bargain.

"For most of them, the prices are just like they were 10 years ago," he said, "and in some cases they're less." He attributed the lack of inflation to the fact that more species are now bred in captivity, while years ago many were captured in jungle streams and imported.

Every dealer contacted by the I-J reported a booming trade in something called Habitrail, a home for hamsters. Its makess tout it as an environment instead of a cage.

Like an erector set, the enthusiast buys it in bits and pieces, constructing elaborate networks of clear plastic tunnels, towers, rooms and passageways. The rodents are said to thrive in it, and their owners enjoy watching them scurry through its labyrinthine passages.

Not all the animals sold in pet stores, though, are ending up under Christmas trees.

"We've been selling a lot of rats," Ms. Davey reported. "Apparently a lot of people in Sausalito feed them to their snakes."

Students Building Mausoleum For Thant Despite Objections

RANGOON (UPI) — The body of former U.N. Secretary General U Thant was placed in a makeshift mausoleum on the Rangoon University campus yesterday despite objections from the family and in an atmosphere of controversy.

The partially completed memorial was built by students of Rangoon Institute of Technology, who with Buddhist monks seized the casket last Thursday just before its scheduled burial in a Rangoon cemetery. The students said Thant deserved a shrine worthy of a world statesman.

Thousands of Rangoon residents packed the campus yesterday to pay their respects to Thant, who died of cancer Nov. 25 in New York.

NAB, the official news agency of Burma, quoted Thant's younger brother U Khant and his son-in-law, Dr. Tin Myint, as saying the family "totally disapproves" of Thant's burial on the campus and expressed "deep regret" the funeral should have been "abused for political ends by some elements."

The students rejected appeals by U Khant that they return the body and instead began to build a mausoleum on the campus.

The family and Burmese authorities then made arrangements to transfer the casket to a government allotted mausoleum site near Shwedagon Pagoda in downtown Rangoon.

But the students forestalled the arrangement and carried the body on a car to the university's students Union building about 200 yards from the convocation hall before placing it in the makeshift mausoleum.

New Ordinance To Be Discussed

An ordinance governing planned commercial districts will be discussed tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in city hall when the Larkspur City Council and Planning Commission hold a joint meeting.

The ordinance will set up rules and regulations governing any future commercial development over four acres.

Also on the agenda is a discussion of the proposed parking ordinance.

Building Code For Solar Heat

DAVIS (AP) — The city council here is looking to the future for a building code designed for the simplest form of solar heating.

If approved it would require new home builders to equip the structures with light-colored roofs, more windows facing south and natural ventilation using outside air.

Hey, Wake Up; 49ers Are About To Score

SAN FRANCISCO — There sat the 47,475 fans at Candlestick Park. They had endured three quarters of boredom, some of them munching on hot dogs and downing some beers. The only thing to break up the defensive monotony was the electric excitement of a couple of field goals. Marvelous.

But then all of a sudden in the final quarter something began to happen. The 49ers, being held in check all yesterday afternoon by the Green Bay Packers, got the break of the game in a disputed pass interference call and the dozing fans had something to shout about.

The call went against Packer cornerback Ken Ellis on a long pass from Norm Snead to Gene Washington. The 33-yard advancement gave the 49ers a first down on the Packer 21 and five plays later Del Williams scored the game's only touchdown on a two-yard run. Bruce Gossett's kick was good and the 49ers had themselves a 7-6 victory.

But let's go back to that pass interference call. Green Bay coach Dan Devine is back in Wisconsin walking the streets somewhere muttering to himself. Ellis feels he was cheated. Washington says the officials saw it another way and that's what counts.

THE PASS actually was over everybody's head. The unfortunate thing for Ellis is that he slowed down and forced Washington to run into him. Sure, Washington used his hands and pushed Ellis in the back, but his argument was that he wasn't allowed the chance to go after the ball.

The official could have called it either way. If Ellis had kept running full speed, it's likely the call would have gone the other way. But if the mistake was made by the official it's about the only close call that has gone the 49ers' way in quite a spell. In a season such as this, the 49ers need all the help they can get.

Rookie quarterback Tom Owen played the first half but couldn't get anything generated so 49er coach Dick Nolan went with veteran Sam Snead in the second half while Steve Spurrier sat and stewed.

OWEN SAID he had some bruised ribs and Nolan told him because of that and the experience of Snead he was going with Norm in the second half, but to be ready. Snead said he had been told "to be ready" before the game. Spurrier said little, but did mutter, "Nothing they do around here surprises me any more."

He was referring to Nolan's decision to go with Snead instead of himself. It also surprised some of the sports writers.

Said Nolan: "I didn't put Steve in because he hasn't played that much (since his shoulder injury)."

The 49er defense deserves the credit for this one, the fourth straight game of outstanding play. They have given up only one touchdown in the team's last four games and to do that in the NFL is something. It's no wonder guys like Cedrick Hardman, Tommy Hart, Bill Belk and Bob Hoskins had a proud look about them.

"I GUESS it's because everybody is playing together now," said defensive captain and outside linebacker Dave Wilcox. "We're keeping defenses simple, we're hanging in there and hustling. And the younger guys, like Willie Harper (linebacker on the other side) are learning more and more."

HARD YARD — Green Bay Packers' running back MacArthur Lane yesterday made one yard the hard way. Lane was sent sprawling by 49ers' Tommy Hart and Bill Belk and plummeted over a pileup.

Pass Interference Call Assists 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — To this very minute, the Green Bay Packers feel they got bum rapped by the officials on the play that put the San Francisco 49ers in business.

This was early in the fourth quarter at Candlestick Park yesterday with the Packers nursing a 6-0 lead on a pair of field goals by Chester Marcol and doing a pretty good job of bottling up the 49ers in their own end of the field.

Then came the play that turned the game around and led to the touchdown that gave San Francisco a 7-6 National Football League victory.

It was third and 10 at the San Francisco 46 when veteran quarterback Norm Snead let fly with a pass to the Green Bay 21. Wide receiver Gene Washington and Packer cornerback Ken Ellis were about even when the ball came down but neither wound up with it. The official on the spot, though, called Ellis for interference.

"It was a judgment call and from where I saw it," said Packers Coach Dan Devine, "Ellis couldn't have played it any better. I thought it was going to be an offensive interference call."

"I thought the same," said Ellis. "I was trying to get to the ball and the referee said I pushed him (Washington). But he was behind me. He pushed me."

"That was the big play," added Devine, whose Packers now are 6-7 on the year. "There's no doubt about it."

While the call did put the 49ers in good shape with their deepest penetration of the game, they needed a fine play to get close enough for the score. Rookie running back Sammy Johnson of North Carolina, provided it when on third and 10 at the 21, he took a swing pass from Snead, broke four tackles and banged his way to the four. Two plays later, Delvin Williams, another rookie, carried the ball in from the two and Bruce Gossett added the PAT for the margin of difference.

"It was a tough game to swallow," said Devine, "but you have to give credit to the San Francisco defense. In the last 16 quarters they have given up only one touchdown. They are playing very well at this point."

That's a view San Francisco Coach Dick Nolan agrees with.

"The defense was able to shut them off when it had to," said Nolan. "They forced some key plays."

Still, the victory gave the 49ers only a 5-8 record with one game left to play in another disappointing season. Next week, the New Orleans Saints come to town to wind things up. Green Bay finishes up at Atlanta, and then it's wait until next year for both clubs.

Powerful Lincoln Is Too Much For 'Cats

Lee Keys Thrashing Of Marin

Sweet-shooting Ricky Lee and the powerful Lincoln Mustangs made short work of Marin Catholic High School Saturday night to win the first Northern California Classic invitational basketball tournamentat Marin Catholic.

The Wildcats were impressive in gaining the finals, but they fared no better against Lincoln than two teams before them. The final score, 79-54, said it all.

Lincoln, with virtually the same team that went 27-7 last season, was off and running with the opening tip. By the end of the first quarter, it was 21-12 and forget it. Lee, the tourney's most valuable player, scored nine points in that period and went on to lead all scorers with 24.

Like Vintage of Napa and Drake, who lost to Lincoln by 34 and 12 points, the Wildcats were unable to rebound with the likes of 6-foot-4 Derrick McCray, or run with little Jim Frazier. Both of them made the all-tourney team along with Lee.

Marin Catholic's shining star on an otherwise dark night was guard Tim Hurley, who fought his way to 20 points and a position on the all-tourney team. Mike Mahoney, the Wildcats' premier forward, had a miserable game but made the all-tourney team on the strength of 30 points against Hogan of Vallejo and a super defensive effort against Lowell.

Lowell took third place with an easy, 70-53 win over Vintage, and Drake won the consolation, beating Hogan, 69-53. San Rafael salvaged seventh place with a 57-52 victory over Arcata.

In Drake's win, 5-10 Mike Ghiringhelli led four teammates in double figures with 20 points, and the diminutive Pirates won the rebounding battle, 40-25. Walt Gillespie, who had 10 points to go with 22 and 16 in earlier games, made the all-tourney team.

A pair of juniors, forward John Soares and guard Steve Colombo, paced San Rafael's victory with 18 and 14 points respectively. The Bulldogs trailed at the end of three quarters, but outscored the Tigers by nine in the final period.

Others named to the all-tourney team were Eric Gilberg of Lowell, Gordon Nielson of Vin-

IN WIN OVER CHIEFS

Lamonica Appears Rusty

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Daryle Lamonca had not played quarterback for the Oakland Raiders for two months and his rustiness showed yesterday.

Lamonica was pressed into service in the first quarter against the Kansas City Chiefs when starter Larry Lawrence suffered a knee injury. Coach John Madden, with a National Football League playoff berth long ago locked up, chose to rest regular Kenny Stabler.

Lamonica threw three interceptions and completed only two of seven passes. But the 12-year veteran from Notre Dame hit the one that counted.

That was a 10-yard scoring flip to Cliff Branch with 10:16 remaining, giving the Raiders a 7-6 victory over the Chiefs. Lamonica had not played since the fourth game of the season, a 40-24 victory over Cleveland.

The game's lone touchdown was set up by Jimmy Warren, who picked off a Lenny Dawson pass and returned it 34 yards to the Kansas City 10. Warren would have scored, but he was knocked down by teammate Otis Sistrunk, who was trying to block Dawson.

The victory was Oakland's 11th against two losses. The Chiefs fell to 5-8 and now are assured their first losing season since 1963.

Marin All-Stars Turn Back Fire Fighters For Charity

By DAVID EINSTEIN

"Time is of the essence," the poet writes. "The crowd and players are the same age always, but the man in the crowd is older every year."

Saturday, the "man in the crowd" came to play as 60 of Marin County's former prep and college football stars relived their glory days in the fourth annual Marin Charity Bowl.

Some 500 fans spent a breezy, sunny afternoon and $2 apiece to watch the Marin All-Stars defeat the Marin County Fire Fighters, 31-20 at College of Marin. Proceeds from the game, sponsored by the Exchange Club of Marin, will go to Marin Aid to Retarded Children.

The "men in the crowd" are no longer high school stars. They have jobs, families, some are overweight and even losing their hair. But a good cause and trace of football in the blood brought them out to play, and none regretted it.

"It's for charity, and besides, I like to play football," said Leon Delisle, a San Rafael carpenter who has played in every charity bowl. He thought momentarily, then added, "You know, I've been playing football for 15 years."

Jim Finnegan, who sells diesel engines in San Francisco and lives in San Rafael, scored three straight times on short runs as the All-Stars wiped out an early, 6-0 lead by the Firefighters. Finnegan's heroics were set up by the passing of Mike Sanderson, a house painter from Novato; his targets included Bob Daniele and Tim Mcgrath, who made it 28-6 on a 12-yard catch in the closing minutes of the third quarter.

Marty Andreas, who delivers for Marin County Poultry and attends College of Marin, kicked four extra points and a 45-yard field goal for the final All-Star points.

The Firefighters opened and closed the scoring on a pair of touchdown passes from Jim Peters to Pete Carroll. The former works for a trucking firm in Richmond, while the latter is a graduate assistant football coach at University of the Pacific, where he starred a few years ago.

Another coach, George Adams, scooted nine yards for the Firefighters' other TD. Adams works at Moreau High in Hayward.

NFL ROUNDUP

Redskins Can Settle Only Remaining Playoff Issue

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Washington Redskins can resolve the only remaining questions regarding National Football League playoff berths tonight when they visit the National Football Conference West champion Los Angeles Rams on national television. (The game will be televised in the Bay Area at 6 o'clock on Channels 7 and 11.)

A Redskin victory would eliminate the Detroit Lions, who kept their playoff hopes alive with a 23-19 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals yesterday, and the Dallas Cowboys, who beat Cleveland 41-17 Saturday.

The way things shape up now, Miami, which clinched the American Football Conference East championship with a 17-16 victory over Baltimore yesterday while Buffalo was defeated 20-10 by the New York Jets, will meet AFC West champion Oakland in the quarterfinals of the NFL playoffs Saturday, Dec. 21, in Oakland.

Pittsburgh, which clinched the AFC Central Division title with a 21-17 triumph over New England, will host AFC wild card Buffalo Sunday, Dec. 22.

The NFC East champion (Washington or St. Louis) will play the Vikings in Minnesota, Dec. 21, and the NFC wild card team (Washington, St. Louis, Dallas or Detroit) will meet the Rams in Los Angeles the following day. St. Louis could have clinched the NFC East title, but was upset Sunday by lowly New Orleans, 14-0.

If Washington beats Los Angeles, the NFC East championship will be decided next weekend with either the Redskins or Cards gaining the title and the other gaining the wild card.

Should Los Angeles beat Washington, St. Louis would become the NFC East champ and the Redskins, Cowboys and Lions will all wait until next weekend to decide the wild card berth.

In less significant action yesterday, Philadelphia beat the New York Giants 20-7; San Diego downed Chicago 28-21; Oakland nipped Kansas City 7-6; San Francisco beat Green Bay 7-6 and Denver whipped Houston 37-14.

Jets 20, Bills 10

Joe Namath, playing probably his last home game for the New York Jets, threw a 36-yard touchdown pass to Jerome Barkum with four minutes remaining as the Jets stretched their winning streak to five games with an upset of Buffalo. Namath, said before the game it was "doubtful" he would return to the Jets next season.

Lions 23, Bengals 19

Greg Landry fired an eight-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Sanders with just 29 seconds remaining to upset Cincinnati, killing the Bengals' playoff hopes.

Dolphins 17, Colts 16

Bob Griese passed for one touchdown and Larry Csonka ran for another in the first half as Miami gained its fourth straight AFC Eastern Division title.

Steelers 21, Patriots 17

Franco Harris ran for 136 yards (increasing his season's total to 927 yards) and a touchdown to help Pittsburgh clinch the AFC Central Division title.

Saints 14, Cardinals 0

Rookie running back Alvin Maxson set a pair of New Orleans rushing records, including a 66-yard touchdown sprint and a 148-yard total, and a tenacious Saints defense shut out the playoff-bound Cardinals.

Eagles 20, Giants 7

Rookie Mike Boryla, making only his second professional start, threw for one touchdown and directed two other TD drives with pinpoint passing in leading Philadelphia over the Giants.

Chargers 28, Bears 21

Jesse Freitas hit Harrison Davis with a 43-yard fourth-quarter touchdown pass and then connected on a 30-yarder to set up the winning score for San Diego. Fullback Bo Matthews plunged over from the one with 5:25 left to give the Chargers their fourth win against nine losses, the same record as the Bears. San Diego's Don Woods became the seventh rookie in NFL history to run for more than 1,000 yards in a season, gaining 75 to make his total for the year 1,057.

Broncos 37, Oilers 14

NFL rushing leader Otis Armstrong ran for three touchdowns and set two Denver team records in leading the Broncos over Houston. Armstrong, who accumulated only 90 rushing yards all last season, rushed 31 times for 183 yards Sunday, breaking the Broncos' single game mark of 166 set by Floyd Little against Cincinnati in 1969. And with a game left at San Diego, the former Purdue All-America, who scored on runs of 10, 12 and 15 yards, has 1,265 yards rushing for the year, breaking the Broncos season mark of 1,133, which also was set by Little in 1971.

QUITE A FOLLOWING — Broncos' running back Otis Armstrong (24) was trailed by a convoy of blockers. Jon Keyworth (32), Paul Howard (60) and Riley Odoms were following yesterday.

'IDIOTIC' PROPOSAL

Finley Dislikes O'Malley's Idea

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley says a proposal to move his world champion baseball club to Seattle is "idiotic."

The plan, proposed by Los Angeles Dodgers owner Walter O'Malley during last week's winter baseball meetings in New Orleans, would move the A's to Seattle as the foundation of a new league. With the A's gone, O'Malley suggested the San Francisco Giants could play some of their home games across the bay in Oakland.

"I am certain that Mr. O'Malley made that request on behalf of his good friend, Mr. Horace Stoneham, the Giants' owner," Finley was quoted yesterday by the San Francisco Examiner.

"If Mr. O'Malley would concentrate more on his own team's problems, he might do better in a World Series," said Finley, whose team beat the Dodgers in the 1974 Series in five games.

"Mr. O'Malley no longer runs baseball, even though he obviously believes he does," added Finley. "The more I hear him speak, the more senile I believe he's becoming."

St. Ignatius Downs Tam

SAN FRANCISCO — St. Ignatius High School continued to feast on Marin County Athletic League opposition Saturday night, defeating Tamalpais, 79-51.

The Wildcats, led by 6-foot-8, 215-pound center Mike Bowie, made the Indians their second MCAL victim in two nights and their third in two weeks. They beat Redwood by a point Friday.

Forward Kevin Murphy scored 20 for Tam, and forward Dan Butterfield got 16, but five S.I. players finished in double figures. Bowie had 16 points and dominated the boards.

Walton Denies Rumors That He Is Quitting Basketball

Combined AP & UPI

PORTLAND, Ore. — The Portland Trail Blazers are back home after an 0-4 road trip. But one worry has been taken care of: center Bill Walton has denied rumors he will quit pro basketball and says he'll resume playing as soon as he recovers from an ankle injury.

"The whole situation has been completely blown out of proportion, and it never should have happened," said Herman Sarkowsky, president of the National Basketball Association team.

Sarkowsky, who met with Walton Saturday night, said: "Bill has a great number of things troubling him, but I think they can be called 'first year-itis.'"

Boxing

MERIDA, Mexico — Mexico's Rodolfo Martinez won the World Boxing Council's bantamweight crown Saturday night, knocking out champion Rafael Herrera also of Mexico, in the first 30 seconds of the fourth round.

BUENOS AIRES — Victor Galindez of Argentina threw dozens of roundhouse punches that left Len (Stinger) Hutchins of Detroit unable to come out for the 13th round. The win gave the Argentine the World Boxing Association share of the light heavyweight title Saturday night by technical knockout.

Mount Tam Wins Cage Tournament

BERKELEY — Mount Tamalpais School breezed to a 60-45 victory over Woodside Priory of Portola Saturday in the championship game of the California School for the Deaf invitational basketball tournament.

Bruce Stephens scored 13 points and Jeff Edwards 10 to pace Mt. Tam to its third victory in the eight-team tournament. The Ross school defeated Lick Wilmerding of San Francisco, 52-36 and Tomales, 61-52 in earlier rounds.

Edwards, Neil King and John Wyman were named to the all-tourney team from Mt. Tam.

Football

BURLINGTON, Vt. — The University of Vermont football team has lost its final battle and 43 players are left with one more decision to make. "Most of them will transfer," predicted coach Carl Falivene, after the school's trustees voted 12-7 Saturday to end the 77-year-old program.

Tennis

ADELAIDE, Australia — Bjorn Borg of Sweden Saturday defeated Onny Parum of New Zealand, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, to win the South Australian Tennis Championship. Olga Morozova of Russia defeated Evonne Goolagong for the women's crown, 7-6, 2-6, 6-2.

Golf

MIYAZAKI, Japan — Johnny Miller yesterday fired a five-under-par 67 in the final round of the $17,000 Phoenix Golf Tournament and scored an easy seven-stroke victory at 274 over Lu Liang-Huan of Taiwan.

Bowling Winners At Nave Lanes

The team of Nita Moore and Frank Hoermann took first place yesterday in the annual Adult-Junior Handicap bowling tournament at Nave Lanes in Ignacio.

In the 200 Classic Tournament also at Nave yesterday, Horst Peterson won and received $70 plus a trophy. Scores were unavailable.

Junior bowler Ken Pedroli, teaming with Dottie Keaton for sixth place, turned in the best Adult-Junior performance with a 716 scratch series. He had games of 199, 251 and 266. Twenty-eight women and 75 juniors were entered.

Results — Nita Moore and Frank Hoermann, 1,347 total net pins; Dee Ray and John Wunder, 1,334; Inez Bernardi and Mark Holmes, 1,275; Nancy Wurz and Norm Ringheimer, 1,268; Helen Palazzotto and Bob McClean, 1,266; Dottie Keaton and Ken Pedroli, 1,261; Bea Hoffman and Bill Canavan, 1,261.

Youth Scores Three Goals In Title Game

Todd Brockman scored three goals to lead the Greenbrae United team to a 6-2 victory over Kent in the Under 10 division of the Marin Youth Soccer Association championships yesterday.

That game was played at Kent School. In two games played at College of Marin, Bacich United won the 12-year-old title, 3-1, over Kent and Mayflower San Rafael took the 14-year-old crown, 2-1, over Mill Valley.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Burroughs Good Investment Bet

By DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. We are a newly married couple; I work and my wife is a full-time student. We have $14,000 in the bank and 50 American Elec. Power (NYSE). What investments would you suggest with a view to our buying a house in three years? — E. B.

A. Although my approach is admittedly conservative, in most cases the cautious policy creates fewer problems. For this reason, I suggest that you put $5,000 to $7,000 in a term certificate at your bank, invest about $4,000 in 50 shares of Burroughs (NYSE) and leave the balance in your regular savings account for liquidity.

After IBM, Burroughs is probably the most complete computer company. Its record has also been outstanding with earnings growth averaging 27 per cent annually over the past decade. And the trend continues, with nine months' 1974 profits ahead 27 per cent to $2.08 a share. Orders are continuing to rise, up 18 per cent during the third quarter and 21 per cent for the nine months, with minicomputer-based systems a surprising pocket of strength. Cumulative backlogs are up a strong 34 per cent.

Management foresees a further good gain in 1975 from the $3.60 projected for the current year. There has been a substantial reduction in debt over the past few years. Burroughs has recently introduced several new models at the top of its line, as well as newer versions of its accounting minicomputers.

CALIFORNIA-CANADIAN'S NEW HOME

First tenant to move into the Courthouse Square Office Building in downtown San Rafael is California-Canadian Bank, formerly located at 888 Fourth Street. The new 6,000-square foot office takes up two thirds of the main floor of the tower building. Liberal use of wood — hemlock ceiling and walls and oak floor and desks — provides a homey atmosphere. At teller's counter in center are Phillip Steidl, operations officer, and A.L. (Ray) Varano, branch manager. At her desk to right is branch secretary Frances George. The new office of California-Canadian Bank is four times the size of its former location.

Early Gain On Stock Market Evaporates

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices turned lower today in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

An early advance, apparently inspired by the Federal Reserve Board's decision to lower its discount rate at the Washington and Philadelphia banks, gave way to investor concern over the recession.

Phillips Petroleum was lower for the second consecutive session, off 1. Norway has proposed a new oil-tax structure for its North Sea properties. Phillips officials talked to the Norwegians about this last week.

Other oil and related issues also were lower. Halliburton and Superior Oil lost 2½ apiece, Schlumberger 1⅜, McDermott (ex-dividend) 1¾ and Sun Oil 1.

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harmon today quoted silver at $4.085 cents per fine ounce, down 11.5 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $4.085 down 11.5 cents and fabricated silver at $4.187 down 11.8 cents.

Roberts Is New I-J Controller

Larry A. Roberts of San Jose today assumed the post of business manager and controller of the Independent-Journal, succeeding Victor K. VerBrugghen.

VerBrugghen, who has been with the I-J two years, is taking the controller's position at the Van Nuys News, Los Angeles County.

Roberts, 31, was claims manager and assistant director of accounting services for Health Maintenance, Inc. of San Francisco, a major prepaid health insurance and health care firm. He previously was in the financial office of the Shell Oil Co. in Menlo Park — where he worked with VerBrugghen — and was manager, accounts receivable, for Stanford University Medical Center.

Roberts was born in Enumclaw, Wash. near Seattle, and grew up in Vancouver, Wash. He was a business administration graduate of the University of Washington and obtained a master's degree in business administration from the University of Santa Clara. He is an Army veteran and served in South Vietnam in 1962 and 1963.

Roberts is married and has two young children; his hobbies include gardening, bridge and table tennis. He said he will be moving to Marin County soon.

A Wide Variance In Sugar Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department conducted a survey and found that while Americans were paying 48 cents a pound for sugar last month, Canadians paid 12 cents and Mexicans paid 8.4 cents.

Officials said the varying prices were part of a bizarre pattern produced by differing government policies around the world.

They said that while world raw sugar prices zoomed to new heights during the past year because supplies were tight, many exporting nations held their home-market retail prices down by using price controls.

The survey by the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service of prices as of Nov. 1 in 30 countries showed retail prices ranging from 7.4 cents a pound in Belize to 84 cents a pound in Zaire.

Today is Monday, Dec. 9, the 343rd day of 1974 with 22 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

English poet John Milton was born Dec. 9, 1608. This also is the birthdate of actors Kirk Douglas (1918), Broderick Crawford (1911) and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., (1909).

On this day in history:

In 1793, Noah Webster founded the American Minerva, the first daily newspaper in New York City.

In 1907, Christmas Seals were placed on sale in the Post Office in Wilmington, Del., to raise money to fight tuberculosis.

In 1920, the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to American President Woodrow Wilson.

In 1971, Dr. Ralph Bunche, former U.N. official and winner of the 1950 Nobel Peace Prize, died at the age of 67.

A thought for the day: English poet John Milton said, "Peace has her victories no less renowned than war."

Donkey Lets Out A Bray Just To Let You Know—

Those who have eyes know a donkey when they see one, but this isn't enough to satisfy the true donkey. He lets out a bray — just in case he escaped notice.

QUEEN OF CLUBS

West opened the queen of clubs, and South won with the king. The slam seemed to depend on a 2-2 break of the four missing trumps, but there was a slight extra chance. South tried for it by leading the ten of spades at the second trick.

West covered with the jack of spades, and dummy won with the king. When East dropped the nine of spades South wondered if he had trapped West into making a foolish play.

TWO POSSIBILITIES

If East had started with the singleton nine of spades, South could now lead another trump through West to finesse through the Q-5. The other possibility was that West had started with only J-5 of trumps and that East had started with Q-9. In this case, a trump finesse would fail.

South didn't say a word but returned to his hand with a diamond and led the eight of spades through West.

The pressure was too much for West. "What an idiot I am," he confessed ruefully. Then he turned to South and asked: "Would you have let the 10 ride if I hadn't covered with the jack?"

"Of course," South affirmed. Why tell a donkey that he has given himself away?

String Quartet Wins Accolade

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

The Marin Arts Quartet composed of three faculty members and a senior from Dominican College, gave last night at Angelico Hall a strongly interpreted program of string quartets by Haydn, Schubert, Barber and Bartok.

What inconsistencies there were could be easily overlooked in favor of the insight and conviction they brought to the pieces, particularly to the Schubert and Barber.

The roughest piece was the opening Haydn, his Quartet in E Flat, Opus 33, No. 2, "The Joke Quartet."

Violinist Charles Meacham forcefully triggered each phrase, then bent them to graceful arcs. His use of rests (as if the score were full of commas, semicolons and colons) was instructive as were his modulations of dynamics. However, his starts were not up to his high level.

Both Lucien Mitchell on viola and his wife, Jean, on violoncello were less than sharp in their attack and, too often, particularly in the softer segments, scratched their bowing. However, they sought and found a full and reverberating sonority.

The scherzo starts in a very minuet mood which was well articulated and the cello recapitulations — more like accents then developments — are quite enchanting.

The difficulties in bowing disturbed the peaceful quality of the timing in the large sostenuto, but Meacham recovered the movement with a sensitive and controlled playing of the sadly introspective central motive. However, as Meacham gained focus, the quartet's unison became more and more tenuous.

The presto had bounce and joviality and the reason for the title, "The Joke", became quite apparent in the sudden humorous pauses, stops and incomplete phrasing at the end, which they played with cautious precision.

The Schubert (The Quartet Movement, Op. Posth) was a distinct change. It starts, busy and stirring, with the first, then the second violin humming quite rapidly. This is then passed along to the viola and cello. After it lifts, a more romantic theme starts, only to soon incorporate the opening buzz.

Absolutely charming harp-like, plucked accents on the cello strings set against the underlying tension. These then are echoed in the rapidly ascending melody in the first violin line.

Here, the playing was far more consistent. Unified and interpretively moving, they came to marvelous moments of full ripeness and then settled back to a more moderate level.

The final movement, as a dream lifting out of sleep, was exquisite and the applause from the fifty or more persons present called for repeated bows.

It would be difficult to choose between the Schubert or the Barber, for both were brightly illuminated.

Samuel Barber's String Quartet, Opus 3, sets Matthew Arnold's poem "Dover Beach" to some rather fascinating music.

It opens with a wandering, eery calmness. Baritone Walter Martin's touch of nasality fit the violin tonalities appropriately.

Martin has an echoing fullness to his voice, an open placement in the throat, that gives it a wide base.

Martin has not been given a voice that immediately strikes one with a spectacular sound, but he has trained it, and uses it, with such care that it becomes quite effective in molding interpretations.

The program closed with Bela Bartok's Quartet No. 3. It takes great, intense dips and jumps in pitch, warps tempo and has heavy, hard-bowed accents. The sonorous moans from viola and cello stand isolated in a pulled and stretched and contorted world painted by the strings.

It was here that Mark Jordon, a senior at Dominican College in this quartet made of faculty members, hit his stride. Wavering, tense, then attacking, then perplexed, he outlined boldly the shifts in mood and closed the concert with perhaps its highest moment of interpretative playing.

Baritone Martin will give a recital Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in Angelico Hall at Dominican, singing a rarely heard group of art songs by Faure, Dvorak, Rachmaninoff and Carlisle Floyd with Ted Blair at the piano.

Saxophonist Will Solo At Concert

Saxophonist Terry Summa of Los Gatos will be the featured soloist when the San Rafael High School concert and symphonic bands present a winter festival concert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the school.

Summa was a teacher of instrumental music at San Rafael High School for eight years and is currently a woodwinds instructor at Foothill College. He has played with jazz, light opera and dance bands throughout the Bay Area and with the Oakland Symphony.

The concert band will feature selections by Erickson, Kabalevsky and the symphonic will play Terepin's Fanfare for Brass and Percussion and In Memoriam by Alfred Reed, dedicated to the late Richard Russell Alfonso, former bass clarinet player with the band who died in a recent automobile accident.

Charlene Wilkerson, band instructor, will conduct the free concert.

A-Pact Disagreement Is Growing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Controversy over President Ford's nuclear arms agreement with the Russians is growing, and its future is uncertain.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the main congressional critic of the accord, says American taxpayers will have to spend "tens of billions of dollars" to build the weapons contemplated in the ceilings to which Ford and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev agreed in principle at Vladivostok.

He says the Ford administration should go back and negotiate a pact calling for actual arms reductions rather than a ceiling which allows the United States to build by 1985 all the nuclear weapons it planned to build anyway.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says if Congress rejects the agreeoent and insists on renegotiaton it should appropriate $5 billion to $10 billion for more nuclear weapons. He said that would be "the only possible incentive" to persuade Russia to negotiate a better agreement.

Jackson's remarks were made yesterday in a televison interview (CBS "Face the Nation); Kissinger's in a Saturday news conference.

The administration's international trade bill has been held up for three years in a dispute between Jackson and Kissinger over Soviet emigration, a possible clue to what could happen to the arms accord.

Under the agreement, the United States and Soviet Union would be limited to 2,400 strategic bombers and missiles. Of these, 1,320 missiles could be equipped with multiple warheads.

Based on statements by Jackson and Kissinger during the past week and reports from officials close to them, these are their conflicting positions:

JAKCSON

The ceiling of 2,400 bombers and missiles is too high. It should be 1,760.

The ceiling on multiple warheads is "wantonly high" and will encourage a race by both sides to build up to the ceiling.

Verification of multiple warheads is questionable, if not impossible.

The accord makes no provision for reductions of strategic arms in the immediate future. Soviet missiles are capable of launching heavier pay loads than their U. S. counterparts, and this advantage has not been equalized.

KISSINGER

The ceilings are a "major breakthrough" because, for the first time in the nuclear arms race, neither side will have to worry that the other is trying to achieve significant nuclear superiority. "For the first time in the nuclear age, for a 10 year period, the arms race will not be driven by the fear of what the other side might be about to do..."

Failure of Congress to approve the accord, o top of the delay in the trade bill, would jeopardize U.S.-Soviet detente.

The greater lifting power of Soviet missiles should not unduly concern the United States. These heavy Soviet missiles primarily threaten U. S. land-based missiles, which constitute only 25 per cent of the U. S. strategic arsenal. U.S. nuclear missile submarines and the Strategic Air Command would be able to retaliate effectively if the U. S. landbased missiles were wiped out.

The Vladivostok agreement will require the Russians to reduce some of their missile force since they currently possess nearly 2,600 missiles and bombers. The United States which possesses only 2,200, will be able to continue its Trident submarine program, and its B-1 bomber program.

Verification of the warheads is not as difficult as had originally been thought. U.S. intelligence knows which Soviet missiles can be equipped with multiple warheads and has observed that Soviet missile silos will have to be modified to accommodate these missiles. Admittedly, it will be harder to control submarine carried missiles, and land-mobile missiles.

At Vladivostok, Brezhnev made the concession of not insisting that British and French nuclear forces be lumped in the American force threatening the Soviet Union. He agreed, too, to disregard for the moment U.S. tactical nuclear weapons in Europe, some of which could strike Russia.

The missile and bomber ceilings are well below the projections of the U.S. intelligence community for Soviet arms production over the next 10-year period.

The United States retains the option of developing a heavy missile equivalent to the Soviet heavy missiles, although U.S. strategists in the past considered this not essential. The Russians developed it because they had difficulty miniaturizing nuclear warheads.

Before significant reductions can be negotiated, rigid ceilings must first be agreed to by both sides. Further negotiations on reductions are foreseen for 1980 —five years before the 10-year agreement is to expire.

Nixon Told To Sell His Home In Florida

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Cloee friends of former President Richard Nixon say he'll have to sell his Key Biscayne home to stay solvent, according to the Philadelphia Sunday Bulletin.

The newpaper quoted Robert H. Abplanalp, multimillionaire developer of the aerosol valve, as saying that he and C.G. (Bebe) Rebozo told "a weak and wobbly" Nixon that "he has to sell the Key Biscayne properties to stay within his means."

In an interview, Abplanalp told the Bulletin that he and Rebozo, after making "quite careful projections," estimated that Nixon's annual income will average $200,000 from his pension and proceeds from his writings but that a good portion of the money would go to legal and medical fees.

Abplanalp said in the interview that he and Rebozo passed on the financial advice to the former president when they met with him on Nov. 26 at Casa Pacifica, Nixon's San Clemente estate.

The disposal of the Key Biscayne properties, known during the Nixon presidency as the "Florida White House," to a nonprofit foundation headed by Abplanalp and Rebozo was the principal money-saving measure discussed by Nixon and his friends, according to the Bulletin.

"For the first time in years, Mr. Nixon has become conscious of what it costs to live. And it's been our idea to help him make up a budget he could live with," Abplanalp was quoted as saying.

He also said in the interview that Nixon explored the possiblity of planting Casa Pacifica in "corn, beans, tomatoes and lettuce" to make money. He said the "truck-gardening plan" was finally discarded "not because Mr. Nixon was reluctant," but because there was not enough acreage and would not be worth it for a farmer to plant, according to the Bulletin.

He told the newspaper that the idea appealed to the former president not only as a "cost-cutting measure," but as a means of producing something.

Long-Term Energy Policy Seen Molding Lifestyles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said today the government was attempting to forge a new national energy policy that will influence American lifestyles for the remainder of this century.

"There is no alternative to establishing a national energy policy. We cannot afford not to act," Morton said as he opened a three-day State Department seminar on energy.

Morton said that the government was searching for a policy that "will affect the way Americans work and live for perhaps the rest of this century."

He urged a spirit of "official candor and public participation" in the development of the policy.

Morton said U.S. energy consumption cannot continue to grow at 4 to 5 per cent a year. He said the United States was currently paying $18 billion annually for imported oil and only a few countries had a "dominance of supply and control of prices."

Today's hearing is focused on consumer concerns and was chaired by Virginia Knauer, special assistant to President Ford for consumer affairs.

"We hope this seminar will lead to a better understanding of the American people that we do have a crisis," she said. Mrs. Knauer said that the goal was "an equitable policy for all. The public needs to know that burdens or sacrifices are equally shared."

She said she hoped the hearing would bring about public support and understanding of a national energy policy.

The discussions attracted witnesses representing a wide range of consumer interests. Among them were representatives of farm blocs, urban areas and American Indians.

Subsequent hearings will focus on business concerns, resource development, environmental and conversation concerns and intergovernmental concerns.

Fischer Rival Said Unworthy

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass is speculating that Bobby Fischer may defend his world chess championship by playing Brazilian grandmaster Henrique Mecking rather than Anatoly Karpov, a Soviet player.

The Soviet news agency Saturday night called Mecking's challenge ludicrous because he lost to Viktor Korchnoi of the Soviet Union in quarterfinal competition.

Korchnoi lost to Karpov last month in the chess challengers finals.

"Fischer probably is far from being convinced, as some would like to think, of his victory over the young Soviet grandmaster, if he chooses Mecking as a rival," Tass said in a commentary entitled "Would Robert Fischer Like a Weaker Rival?"

NOTICE OF SALE OF PROPERTY DELINQUENT FOR NON-PAYMENT OF ASSM. 191, BOND NO. 75 OCEANA MARIN UNIT NO. 5, SERIES NO 6045 FOR IMPROVEMENTS IN THE COUNTY OF MARIN, STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Default having been made in the payment of the following named coupons, 1-2-73 Prin. 286.76, 1-2-74 Prin. 286.66 1-2-75 Prin. 286.66, 1-2-73 int. 224.08, 7-2-73 int. 140.46, 1-2-74 int. 140.46, 7-2-74 int., 130.43, 1-2-75 int. 130.43 and the holder of said bond having demanded in writing that the County Treasurer of the County of Marin, State of California, proceed to advertise and sell the lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond. Now, therefore, I give notice that I will on the 10th day of January, 1975, at the hour of 10:00 a.m. of said day, sell at public auction, the lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at my office in the Marin County Civic Center at San Rafael, California, unless the amount due on said bond and the accrued interest thereon together with the cost of publication of this notice, are paid, and that I will so sell the same to the person who will take the least amount of said lot or parcel of land and pay the full amount of unpaid principal and interest on said bond together with the cost of publication. The lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond and to be sold, is more particularly described, to-wit:

Lot No. 191
as shown on the map of "Oceana Marin—Unit 5," which map was filed for record in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Marin, State of California, on the 3rd day of March, 1972, in Book 15 of Maps, at Page 11.

The amount due on said bond up to the date of this notice is as follows: Due on the principal thereof $4300.00; due on account of interest $872.67; due on account of penalties $223.19 total amount due on said bond $5395.86.

In order to avoid this sale, payment of the total amount above named will be required, together with the cost of publication made before such payment and the additional interest accuring up to the date of payment. Bond may be reinstated upon payment of amounts due, principal, interest, penalties, and fees, in the manner provided by law.

In the event of sale, such sale will include interest in additional to the above total amount due, accruing up to the date of sale, the cost of publication of notice of sale, and $7.00 for the issuance of certificate of sale.

The Independent-Journal is designated as the newspaper in which this notice shall be published.

LEGAL NOTICE
NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing on a proposed urgency ordinance to extend and modify an interim zone for the Bahia-Black Point Knolls area, covering all or a portion of the area shown on the map labeled Exhibit "A". The ordinance would establish temporary special controls over use and density, and it would take effect immediately upon adoption by the Board of Supervisors.

The following Assessor's Parcels would be covered:
143-141-01,02,03,04,05,06,08,09
143-142-01,02,03,04,05,06,07,08,14,15,16,17,18,19,20,21,22

143-220-04,05,06,09,10,13,14,17,18,21,23,24,25,26,27,28,29

The Ordinance would be in effect for four months to provide time for preparation of the Black Point Community Plan. It would allow uses now permitted in A-2 Districts, with densities reduced to one unit per acre, one unit per two acres, or regulated according to lot slope. The Marin County Planning Commission recommended a density of one unit per two acres at its December 2, 1974 meeting. Some of these parcels are within the ridge and upland greenbelt area designated in the adopted Marin Countywide Plan but have not been zoned accordingly, pending revision of the Countywide Plan and completion of the Black Point Plan. The ordinance would provide temporary protection of these parcels to enable analysis of the impacts of a possible change in use from the presently designated low-density residential ridgeland category. ## Moscow Traffic Deaths Are High

MOSCOW (UPI) — The newspaper Pravda released the casualty figures for Moscow traffic accidents today for the first time. They showed a high death toll per number of cars.

It said 574 persons died and 5,914 were injured in 1973 in a total population of about seven million.

TONIGHT'S TELEVISION

Usual on television tonight:

KCRA (3), KRON (4), 9 p.m. — "My Fair Lady". A motion picture musical in which a professor of phonetics wagers he can transform a ragged flower girl into a great lady. Rex Harrison and Audrey Hepburn star in the film which won eight Academy Awards. (Part II)

KPIX (5), KXTV (10), 11:30 p.m. — Following an Apache massacre of a wagon train of French Canadian nuns, the single survivor, Sister Mary, (Leslie Caron) continues on alone to her destination in the savage West. When she meets a tough cowboy, Madron (Richard Boone) she impresses him with her piety — and her ability to handle a gun — and he resolves to protect her during her dangerous journey, in the film classic "Madron."

Watergate Tape Ruling Applauded

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Two network news presidents say they're delighted by a federal judge's memorandum that may pave the way for broadcast of White House tapes played during the Watergate cover-up trial.

But Richard S. Salant of CBS and Richard Wald of NBC agree it sets no legal precedent for eventually permitting live or delayed broadcast coverage of federal court cases they'd like to cover electronically.

"I don't think it goes that far," Salant said of U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell's memo, which last week indicated the tapes probably will be released for broadcast after the cover-up trial ends.

"He was exceedingly clear that it doesn't set that kind of precedent," said Wald, emphasizing that this wasn't the intent of the broadcasters who sought court permission to air the tapes.

Bill Sheehan, ABC News president, was in Hawaii on business and couldn't be reached for comment.

His network, NBC, CBS, the Public Broadcasting Service, the Radio and Television News Directors Association and record firms had asked the U.S. District Court in Washington if they could copy the tapes.

Prior to that request, filed as a legal motion, CBS newsman Fred Graham and his NBC and CBS colleagues informally had asked the trial's presiding judge, John J. Sirica, for permission to air tapes played at the trial.

Sirica informally denied permission after seeking guidance from Judge George H. Hart Jr., head of the federal district court in Washington, who gave Sirica consensus of opinion by the court's judges.

Hart, in a memo to Sirica, said the judges felt verbatim tape transcripts provided the press "appear to constitute more than adequate disclosure" to the public of the tapes' contents.

No Abortions In Medicaid's New Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has proposed new rules that would provide federal funds for contraception and voluntary sterilization programs — but not for abortions.

The regulations would define "family planning services" which individual states must offer needy persons under Medicaid, the federal-state program of medical care for the poor.

They will be issued in their final form after 30 days for public comment.

"The services and supplies (must) include at least physician's consultation, examination and continuing supervision; necessary laboratory examinations and tests; medically approved contraception through chemical, mechanical or other means; and surgical procedures for voluntary sterilization," the regulations state.

"Not included under this definition are abortions performed either for therapeutic (for the life or health of the mother) or non-therapeutic purposes."

The proposals also say Medicaid-funded family planning services must be made available to all individuals of childbearing age, including sexually active minors.

Abortions, sterilizations and the other services have been available to Medicaid recipients. Current figures indicate Medicaid has been financing up to 278,000 abortions a year at a cost of $50 million.

"Abortion doesn't seem to me to be a family planning procedure," HEW Under Secretary Frank Carlucci said when asked for comment on the restriction.

The new proposals conform to Social Security amendments passed by Congress in 1972, that require Medicaid family planning services be mandatory rather than optional because of expanding welfare rolls.

Champion Chef

THE UNEXPLAINED

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

Future British King Was One Witness To A Phantom Vessel

Ghostly apparitions have been seen by many notable witnesses — including a British king.

The lore of the sea bristles with stories of phantom ships. The legendary Flying Dutchman is said to be a ghostly vessel doomed to sail the seas until Judgment Day to atone for the sins of its skipper and crew. And many solid citizens of New Brunswick, Canada, will tell you that often, when the moon is full, they've seen a phantom rig just offshore in flames. The flames burn until the vessel is consumed, only to sail again another night.

One spectacular apparition of a ship was seen and reported by a British monarch.

In 1881, the future King George V was cruising on Her Majesty's Ship Constant. Around 4 a.m. on July 11, the ship was en route from Melbourne to Sydney, Australia.

The sea was as black and smooth as obsidian. The sky was sprinkled with quivering stars. The young king-to-be was standing on deck enjoying the salt spray and the feel of the ship's throbbing engines.

Suddenly an eerie reddish glow appeared off the port bow. At first it was only a vague, luminous mass, like a glow from some vast fire beneath the horizon.

As the luminous mass came closer, something indistinct could be made out in the midst of it. The reddish glow grew brighter and brighter as the distance between it and HMS Constant narrowed.

Then the something in the midst of the glow assumed a definite form and shape. There were masts, sails — it was a sailing ship.

What followed was recounted in a written report by the future king.

"In the midst of the reddish light the masts, spars and sails of a brig two hundred yards distant stood out in strange relief as she came up.

"The lookout reported her as close to the port bow while also the officer of the watch from the bridge clearly saw her. However, upon investigation there was no vestige or sign of any material ship. The night was clear, the sea calm.

"Thirteen persons altogether saw her. Two other ships of the squadron who were sailing on our starboard bow asked whether we had seen the strange red light."

So ends the king-to-be's account.

What was it he and the other sailors saw that night?

Some strange optical illusion, perhaps? The reflection of some distant ship in flames mirrored in the glassy sea?

Or was it something else...something nameless...something that boggles the mind?

Whatever it was, it was there...

'Peaches' Hunt Wants To Make It As A Singer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —The daughter that H. L. Hunt always called "Peaches" says she doesn't believe money should rule her life. She just wants to make it as a singer.

"Peaches" is June Hunt, 29, the daughter of the Texas billionaire who died Nov. 29. She is thought to be one of America's wealthiest women because of her father's fortune.

But June says she isn't content to bask in the limelight cast by the Hunt empire. She's trying to make it in the entertainment world on her talent as a singer and guitarist.

She says that her great wealth frightens some people she meets and causes resentment in others.

"Money is necessary only to provide the necessities of life. It has nothing to do with true happiness," she says.

She will release her first record this month.

BEDROOM WITH THIS VERSATILE GROUP
